Leaves Burn Farmer

ANNISTON -- Clyde Wheatley, 70, retired farmer, is in critical condition in the Missouri Delta Community hospital, suffering from burns.

He was injured at 2:30 p.m. Thursday while burning leaves in his yard.

Just how the accident started has not been determined but Wheatley had suffered a stroke five years ago that prevented him from walking normally. He is believed to have fallen near the fire. His clothes caught fire and were burned from his body.

A cigarette lighter and his cigarettes were found on the ground nearby.

A relative who accompanied Wheatley to the hospital, believes the fire was started by the cigarette lighter.

His wife had gone to a nearby store and did not know of the accident until she returned home.

60 Attend Cub Leader Session

Sixty persons attended Cub Scout leadership training sessions Thursday night at the First Christian Church.

"It was the largest turnout for the session in the history of the Okeechobee district," Eddie Schrader, Scout executive said.

The training related to changes in the Cub Scout program. Cub Scouts formerly had five ranks, bobcat, wolf, bear, lion and webelos. Now the lion rank has been dropped and the webelos rank has been expanded from a half year program to a full year.

Wolf and Bear requirements have been changed to provide boys with activities that most fit their interests.

Cub scouting is open to all boys between eight and 10, and to seven-year-old boys who are in the third grade.

An addition has been made to the leadership program. The newly created den leader coach will give new den mothers training in their duties and help with their program.

Saturn Launch Target Date Set

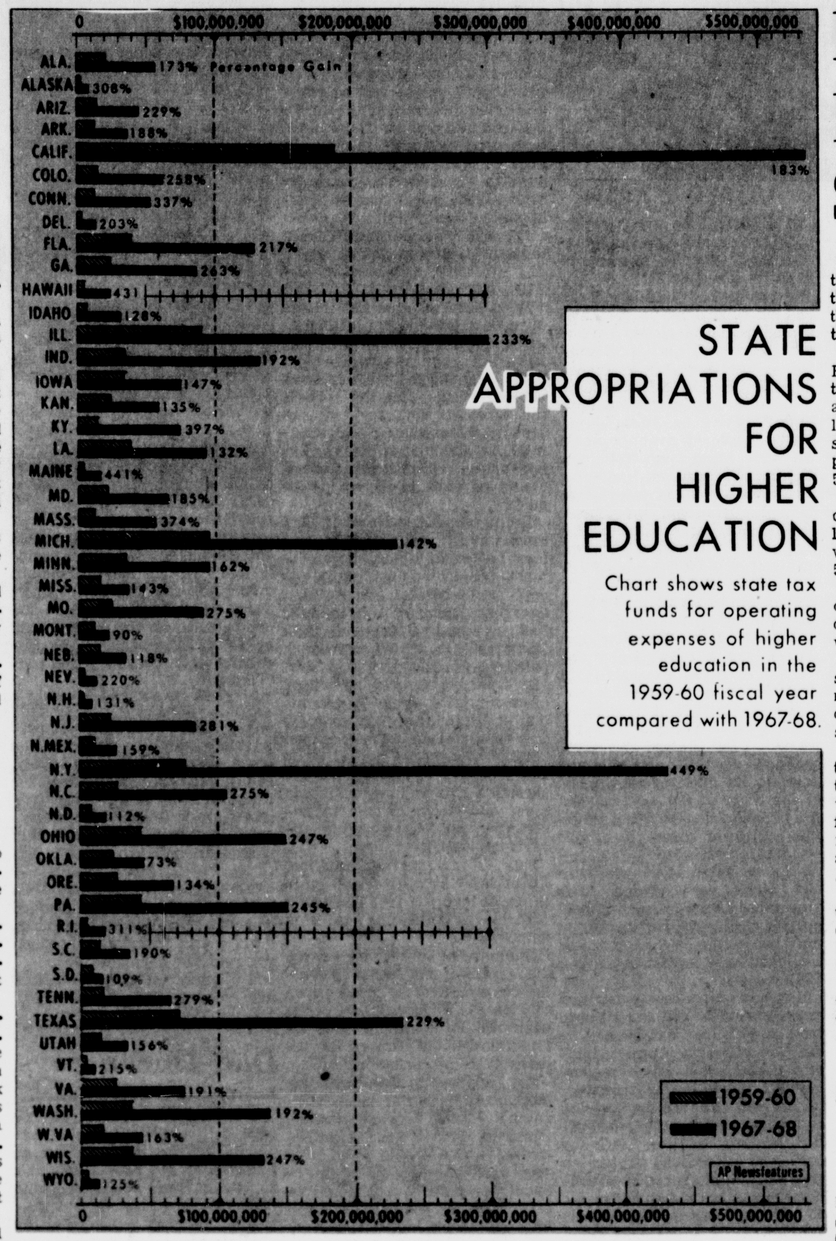

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The space agency has picked Nov. 7— the 50th anniversary of Russia's Bolshevik revolution and election day around the United States— as the target launching date for its first Saturn 5 superrocket.

The 363-foot-tall monster, the type rocket which is to one day propel three American astronauts toward the moon, is to hurl an unmanned Apollo moonship 11,400 miles into space in a major test of the new rocket and spacecraft heat shield.

In announcing the date, however, National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials said that the complexity of the rocket and launch equipment are liable to force delays beyond that time.

"This is a target date," said Maj. Gen. Samuel C. Phillips, Apollo program director. "We are in a very complex learning process and we are going to take all the time we need on that first launch."

It will be the first flight test of the Saturn 5's first two stages and the first time America's man-to-the-moon launch complex will be put into operation.

WASHINGTON (AP) -- The nation's colleges and universities are getting almost $4.4 billion from the states.

That's a record sum and more than triple the total of eight years ago. The growth during that period was as high as 449 per cent in New York State and 374 per cent in Massachusetts. The lowest increase was 73 1/2 per cent in Oklahoma -- a large gain nonetheless.

But it's not enough, according to an eight-year survey of state tax appropriations for operating expenses of higher education. The study, made by Prof. M.M. Chambers of Indiana University, was recently issued by the Office of Institutional Research (OIR) of the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges.

The report pictures a kind of Alice-in-Wonderland situation, recalling the words of the Red Queen: "It takes all the running you can do to keep in the same place. If you want to get somewhere else, you must run at least twice as fast."

Thus, while financial support for the schools is increasing by record sums, the needs of higher education are growing at a faster pace and support in the future must be "at least twice as fast."

Reasons for the ever-mounting operating costs for education, according to the study include:

-- Enrollment increase (the 6 1/2 million registered this year is almost twice the amount recorded in 1959, and the projection is for nine million in 1975).

-- Continuing inflation.

-- Rising faculty salaries (mainly because of keener competition).

-- More expensive teaching equipment.

In the face of all this, the report warns that "many states which appear to be doing all they can for higher education must manage to double or triple their efforts."

McGeorge Bundy, president of the Ford Foundation, recently told a gathering of leaders of higher education they must convince the public of their "imminent bankruptcy" and seek a "drastic increase" in government support.

In a state-by-state breakdown, the report noted that some states which seem to be making the greatest progress in the area of increasing appropriations, still lag behind in their support of higher education in other ways.

As an example, the report cited Massachusetts, with its 374 per cent increase in appropriations over the eight-year period and an 80 per cent rise in the past two years, as trailing most other states in per capita support of higher education, the proportion of residents to whom public higher education is available, and the proportion of high school graduates who go on to college.

Chambers feels that the increase of state aid to higher education will continue through the 1970s, but he notes, "the great question for the future is whether the public commitment is educational opportunity for all who can benefit will be matched by the funds needed to keep the doors to higher education open without sacrificing quality."

Edwin M. Crawford, director of the OIR, notes that "the projected growth of public institutions over the next decade gives no opportunity for complacency or for reduced commitment to higher education by the nation's governors and state legislatures."

Percy Champions Navy Bean Cause

WASHINGTON (AP) — Today's Navy Day and Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., has succeeded in getting Navy bean soup on the Senate menu alongside the traditional Senate bean soup.

Senate restaurant manager Joseph K. Diamond said the Navy bean soup will go on the menu for the first time ever as far as he knows as a result of Percy's Senate-floor appeal last week.

Hard Freeze Slated

Skies cleared over the state today as the weatherman issued the first hard freeze warning of the season for the Bootheel area tonight.

The official U. S. Weather Bureau forcast calls for low temperature readings between 25 and 32 degrees with a hard freeze likely. Saturday will be mostly sunny and cool with high temperatures ranging from 48 to 57.

The area's first heavy frost of fall last year occurred Oct. 16, when the low temperature was 32. The high that day was 57.

The first heavy freeze last fall came on Nov. 1, when the low dipped to 29. The high that day was 46.

Elsewhere in Missouri, the season's first snow fell Thursday night, and a hard freeze is predicted tonight throughout the state.

The snow hit the northern sections, increasing in intensity as the storm moved eastward. Novinger, in Adair County, had four inches. Kirksville had three inches. Maryville had an inch and lesser amounts fell as far south as Kansas City.

Rains, most of them of more than half an inch, hit many parts of the state during the night. Brookfield reported .91 of an inch.

The cold weather will continue through next Wednesday, with the temperatures averaging from 4 to 8 degrees below normal.

Humphrey Leaves For Asian Tour

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey embarked today on a three-nation Asian tour that includes witnessing the inauguration of the newly elected South Vietnamese government in Saigon next Tuesday.

The vice president plans talks with leaders of South Vietnam, Indonesia and Malaysia.

Peach Orchard Man Accused in Collision

Beecher Todd, 65, Peach Orchard, was given a summons by the state highway patrol, when his 1963 Ford truck struck a 1964 Chevrolet pickup truck, driven by Ritter Franks, 54, Holcomb, in the rear.

Todd was charged with careless and imprudent driving and driving too close behind a vehicle.

The accident occurred at 10 a.m. on route HH, one mile south of Peach Orchard, in Pemiscott county, when Franks stopped on the highway.

Todd was bruised. Charles Colbert, 32, Holcomb, passenger in the pickup truck, received a head cut and body bruises.

Both injured men were taken to the Dunklin County Memorial hospital in Kennett.

Time Change Can't Come Too Soon for Daylight Saving Foes

CHICAGO (AP) — Most of the states are keeping in time with each other this year, but some are threatening to change step as soon as possible and Kentucky keeps doing what comes naturally.

Sunday at 2 a.m. marks another semiannual session of the great American midcentury game: changing the clock.

The latest ritual— turn the clock back one hour Sunday— is the first mandatory time switch under the Uniform Time Act passed in 1966 by Congress.

No one complains about changing back to standard time. It's that 60 minutes of extra morning darkness and evening light called Daylight Saving Time that prompts ire.

The time act provided that all clocks in any one state must always have the same time and, from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October, that time would be Daylight Saving.

The new law tossed into one crucible all the controversial arguments that DST had caused since its inauguration in 1918. The federal law said that state legislatures could apply for exemption.

Alaska and Hawaii were exempted. Ohio and Virginia partially observed the new law and 46 states complied in fact if not in spirit.

For millions of persons, changing the clock implies one hour less sleep in the spring and one hour more this Sunday. Millions of others, however, regard clock changing as the war cry to rally legislators and lobbyists against DST.

The latter group consists of farmers with their argument that "chickens don't read clocks," outdoor theater owners who condemn the late sunsets of DST as a blight on their livelihood and anxious mothers who must send their children to school during October's dark mornings.

Tennessee went along with DST this year and is happily changing the clock to Standard Time Sunday.

Arkansas complied with the time act and went on DST for the first time. Some people didn't like it and the issue is expected to be debated at the legislature's special session in February.

Missouri joined the parade to DST this year but some areas of the "show me," state apparently had seen enough and junked DST some time ahead of the law's date which is Sunday.

The Transportation Department, while observing carefully the states' efforts to comply with the new law, has tacitly agreed to be lenient this year.

Plans Set For Legion Vets Parade

Milton Carpenter, St. Louis, will give the Armed Forces Day memorial address following the parade beginning at 10 a.m. Nov. 11.

The parade begins at corner of East Gladys and South Kingshighway and will proceed south along Kingshighway to the Memorial Park cemetery. It will consist of World War I Veterans, American Legion members, Veterans of Foreign Wars, National Guardsmen, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and marching bands.

Carpenter is the former state treasurer. He is a member of the American Legion, 40 & 8, Disabled American Veterans and is past post commander of Amvets in which he holds a life membership.

He is a member and immediate past president of the Pilgrim Luthern church of St. Louis and a former member of its board of directors. He, also, is a member of the National Advisory Board of Valparaiso University and holds memberships in Rotary International, Optimist Club, the Inner Circle, and is on the board of directors of Luekemia Guild.

In 1961, he was given the award of the Man of the Year by the Jewish War Veterans.

Police Work Accident

Lloyd P. Thieret, 22, 305 North Ranney, was charged by police with careless and imprudent driving for failure to have his car under control at 10:26 a.m. today on Ables Road 112 feet east of Pine Street.

The car he was driving collided with a pickup truck driven by Hubert L. Ivy, 64, route two, Sikeston, police said. Both vehicles were traveling east when the accident occurred. No one was injured.

Board of Inquiry Clears Lipscomb

FT. SHERIDAN, Ill. (AP)— A board of inquiry cleared an Army general Thursday of charges that he exerted influence on court martial proceedings to obtain stiff penalties for convicted soldiers.

The U.S. Court of Military Appeals ordered the investigation of Maj. Gen. Thomas H. Lipscomb after reviewing cases of six soldiers convicted at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., during Lipscomb's command there.

The final ruling of the board, signed by Col. John Barr of the Judge Advocate General's Corps, said: "The government has established by legal and competent evidence ... that Gen. Lipscomb did not violate Article 37 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice and the proceedings by which the accused was originally tried was not infected with command control."

Odd Egg Gives Geography Lesson

Mrs. Thelma Reeves, route one, Benton, brought in an unusual marked hen egg laid by one of her Delakamp breed chickens.

The egg of a deep tan color had an outline that looked like a map of the states and foreign countries. The Bootheel was included.

City Judge Fines Eleven

Herman B. Mays, route one, Sikeston, was fined $56 in city court Thursday night on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Judge James Sickal presided.

James Leon Francis, Poplar Bluff, was fined $56 on a charge of petit larceny.

Norman E. Sander Jr., Benton, was fined $17 on a charge of careless and imprudent driving.

Larry Wayne Allmon, 223 Taylor, was fined $15 on a charge of careless and imprudent driving.

Larry Kelley, Cape Girardeau, was fined $7 on a charge of failure to pay parking tickets.

Napoleon Pollack, 216 Felker, was fined $12 on a charge of public intoxication.

Jimmy Ray Pennington, 741 Greer, was fined $11 and sentenced to five days in jail on a peace disturbance charge. The sentence was stayed on transfer to Stoddard county authorities who have a charge of parole violation on Pennington.

Tommy Bradford Raines, 129 North West St., was fined $16 and sentenced to 10 days in jail on a charge of careless and imprudent driving. The sentence was stayed on payment of damages.

Harvey Bailey, Jr., route one, Sikeston, was fined $6 on a charge of trespassing.

Michael C. Hadley, 2120 Betty St., was fined $7 on a charge of riding a motorcycle with no protective head gear.

A $7 bond was forfeited for Barbara Carroll, 303 Kay Dr., who was issued a summons for allowing her dog to run loose.

A $12 bond was forfeited for Walter Brown, 302 Scott St., who was charged with public intoxication.

Burns, Fall and Cut Hurt Four

Four were treated for injuries Thursday at the Missouri Delta Community hospital:

Emma McClellon, burned left finger and thumb; Geneva Vandercarr, burned right fingers; Claude Mason, cut top of head on cornice; Cleo Robertson, fell and injured leg.

Trial Ruling Deferred

By Warren Sokolis

BENTON -- Judge Marshall Craig Thursday passed to Nov. 6 a ruling on a motion for a new trial for Charley Williams of Sikeston, convicted of manslaughter Sept. 7 in Circuit court.

Judge Craig acted after hearing an appeal by defense attorneys for the defense.

Williams, 86, was convited of manslaughter in the fatal shooting of Joe Lee Matthews, 36, Painton, in Sikeston June 25.

The defense listed several reasons for the appeal, including the instructions given to the jury by Judge Craig, procedures at the preliminary hearing in magistrate court and an editorial in the Daily Standard about the case Sept. 13.

In the instructions to the jury manslaughter was offered as one of four possible verdicts the jury could return, along with first or second degree murder or not guilty.

The defense argued that the manslaughter verdict instruction was not proper in a homicide case. Williams had been charged with first degree murder.

The editorial, which appeared after the trial but before sentencing, concerned the punishment for Williams deemed necessary by the writer.

The defense charged that because the magistrate judge refused to exclude witnesses from the courtroom during the preliminary hearing that Williams was denied a fair trial in circuit court.

Judge Craig said the only basis on which he would rule on the appeal would be the instructions given to the jury.

Trial Set For Dec. 7 In Rape Case

BENTON -- Clifford Russell Jr., 26, 816 Wayne, Sikeston, appeared Thursday before Circuit Court Judge Marshall Craig on a charge of statutory rape.

His trial date was set for Dec. 7, in circuit court.

Russell was bound over to circuit court following a preliminary hearing Oct. 17, in magistrate court in Sikeston.

He is charged with the rape of a 14-year-old Chaffee girl.

A continuing bond of $1,000 was kept in effect, Circuit Clerk Lynn Ingram said.

More than 95 per cent of Algeria's estimated 11 million inhabitants are Moslems. French is the country's official language.

Arizona Couple Detained at Charleston

Bennie Rapert, Charleston highway patrolman, apprehended Charles Stewart Mast, 55, and his wife, Cecelia Mast, 55, both of Tucson, Ariz., who were transporting three late model cars through Charleston, with improper identification plates.

The investigation revealed the couple was without a drivers license, and that the serial numbers and registration papers of the vehicles had been typed over.

They are being held in the Mississippi county jail and will be turned over to federal authorities for further investigation.

Three cars and a truck were in their possession.

At Poplar Bluff, Sgt. Kenneth Link of the highway patrol and a Butler county deputy sheriff, arrested Darrel Caudel, 19, Hayward, in Butler county, and a 15-year-old juvenile, charged with five breakins in the Poplar Bluff area.

Wayne County Sheriff Grover Dildine, Greenville, reported to patrol headquarters that he had apprehended Robert S. Robinson, Springfield, in Monroe, La., who had in his possession a 1955 Ford, stolen in St. Louis.

An investigation also revealed that a 1964 Ford had been left at a Phillips 66 service station in Greenville, believed to have been stolen by the Springfield man in St. Louis.

Tires, batteries and other accessories had been taken from the Greenville station.

No one complains about changing back to standard time. It's that 60 minutes of extra morning darkness and evening light called Daylight Saving Time that prompts ire.

The time act provided that all clocks in any one state must always have the same time and, from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October, that time would be Daylight Saving.

The new law tossed into one crucible all the controversial arguments that DST had caused since its inauguration in 1918. The federal law said that state legislatures could apply for exemption.

Alaska and Hawaii were exempted. Ohio and Virginia partially observed the new law and 46 states complied in fact if not in spirit.

For millions of persons, changing the clock implies one hour less sleep in the spring and one hour more this Sunday. Millions of others, however, regard clock changing as the war cry to rally legislators and lobbyists against DST.

The latter group consists of farmers with their argument that "chickens don't read clocks," outdoor theater owners who condemn the late sunsets of DST as a blight on their livelihood and anxious mothers who must send their children to school during October's dark mornings.

Tennessee went along with DST this year and is happily changing the clock to Standard Time Sunday.

Arkansas complied with the time act and went on DST for the first time. Some people didn't like it and the issue is expected to be debated at the legislature's special session in February.

Missouri joined the parade to DST this year but some areas of the "show me," state apparently had seen enough and junked DST some time ahead of the law's date which is Sunday.

The Transportation Department, while observing carefully the states' efforts to comply with the new law, has tacitly agreed to be lenient this year.

Plans Set For Legion Vets Parade

Milton Carpenter, St. Louis, will give the Armed Forces Day memorial address following the parade beginning at 10 a.m. Nov. 11.

The parade begins at corner of East Gladys and South Kingshighway and will proceed south along Kingshighway to the Memorial Park cemetery. It will consist of World War I Veterans, American Legion members, Veterans of Foreign Wars, National Guardsmen, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and marching bands.

Carpenter is the former state treasurer. He is a member of the American Legion, 40 & 8, Disabled American Veterans and is past post commander of Amvets in which he holds a life membership.

He is a member and immediate past president of the Pilgrim Luthern church of St. Louis and a former member of its board of directors. He, also, is a member of the National Advisory Board of Valparaiso University and holds memberships in Rotary International, Optimist Club, the Inner Circle, and is on the board of directors of Luekemia Guild.

In 1961, he was given the award of the Man of the Year by the Jewish War Veterans.

Police Work Accident

Lloyd P. Thieret, 22, 305 North Ranney, was charged by police with careless and imprudent driving for failure to have his car under control at 10:26 a.m. today on Ables Road 112 feet east of Pine Street.

The car he was driving collided with a pickup truck driven by Hubert L. Ivy, 64, route two, Sikeston, police said. Both vehicles were traveling east when the accident occurred. No one was injured.

Board of Inquiry Clears Lipscomb

FT. SHERIDAN, Ill. (AP)— A board of inquiry cleared an Army general Thursday of charges that he exerted influence on court martial proceedings to obtain stiff penalties for convicted soldiers.

The U.S. Court of Military Appeals ordered the investigation of Maj. Gen. Thomas H. Lipscomb after reviewing cases of six soldiers convicted at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., during Lipscomb's command there.

The final ruling of the board, signed by Col. John Barr of the Judge Advocate General's Corps, said: "The government has established by legal and competent evidence ... that Gen. Lipscomb did not violate Article 37 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice and the proceedings by which the accused was originally tried was not infected with command control."

Odd Egg Gives Geography Lesson

Mrs. Thelma Reeves, route one, Benton, brought in an unusual marked hen egg laid by one of her Delakamp breed chickens.

The egg of a deep tan color had an outline that looked like a map of the states and foreign countries. The Bootheel was included.

City Judge Fines Eleven

Herman B. Mays, route one, Sikeston, was fined $56 in city court Thursday night on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Judge James Sickal presided.

James Leon Francis, Poplar Bluff, was fined $56 on a charge of petit larceny.

Norman E. Sander Jr., Benton, was fined $17 on a charge of careless and imprudent driving.

Larry Wayne Allmon, 223 Taylor, was fined $15 on a charge of careless and imprudent driving.

Larry Kelley, Cape Girardeau, was fined $7 on a charge of failure to pay parking tickets.

Napoleon Pollack, 216 Felker, was fined $12 on a charge of public intoxication.

Jimmy Ray Pennington, 741 Greer, was fined $11 and sentenced to five days in jail on a peace disturbance charge. The sentence was stayed on transfer to Stoddard county authorities who have a charge of parole violation on Pennington.

Tommy Bradford Raines, 129 North West St., was fined $16 and sentenced to 10 days in jail on a charge of careless and imprudent driving. The sentence was stayed on payment of damages.

Harvey Bailey, Jr., route one, Sikeston, was fined $6 on a charge of trespassing.

Michael C. Hadley, 2120 Betty St., was fined $7 on a charge of riding a motorcycle with no protective head gear.

A $7 bond was forfeited for Barbara Carroll, 303 Kay Dr., who was issued a summons for allowing her dog to run loose.

A $12 bond was forfeited for Walter Brown, 302 Scott St., who was charged with public intoxication.

Trial Ruling Deferred

By Warren Sokolis

BENTON -- Judge Marshall Craig Thursday passed to Nov. 6 a ruling on a motion for a new trial for Charley Williams of Sikeston, convicted of manslaughter Sept. 7 in Circuit court.

Judge Craig acted after hearing an appeal by defense attorneys for the defense.

Williams, 86, was convited of manslaughter in the fatal shooting of Joe Lee Matthews, 36, Painton, in Sikeston June 25.

The defense listed several reasons for the appeal, including the instructions given to the jury by Judge Craig, procedures at the preliminary hearing in magistrate court and an editorial in the Daily Standard about the case Sept. 13.

In the instructions to the jury manslaughter was offered as one of four possible verdicts the jury could return, along with first or second degree murder or not guilty.

The defense argued that the manslaughter verdict instruction was not proper in a homicide case. Williams had been charged with first degree murder.

The editorial, which appeared after the trial but before sentencing, concerned the punishment for Williams deemed necessary by the writer.

The defense charged that because the magistrate judge refused to exclude witnesses from the courtroom during the preliminary hearing that Williams was denied a fair trial in circuit court.

Judge Craig said the only basis on which he would rule on the appeal would be the instructions given to the jury.

Trial Set For Dec. 7 In Rape Case

BENTON -- Clifford Russell Jr., 26, 816 Wayne, Sikeston, appeared Thursday before Circuit Court Judge Marshall Craig on a charge of statutory rape.

His trial date was set for Dec. 7, in circuit court.

Russell was bound over to circuit court following a preliminary hearing Oct. 17, in magistrate court in Sikeston.

He is charged with the rape of a 14-year-old Chaffee girl.

A continuing bond of $1,000 was kept in effect, Circuit Clerk Lynn Ingram said.

Arizona Couple Detained at Charleston

Bennie Rapert, Charleston highway patrolman, apprehended Charles Stewart Mast, 55, and his wife, Cecelia Mast, 55, both of Tucson, Ariz., who were transporting three late model cars through Charleston, with improper identification plates.

The investigation revealed the couple was without a drivers license, and that the serial numbers and registration papers of the vehicles had been typed over.

They are being held in the Mississippi county jail and will be turned over to federal authorities for further investigation.

Three cars and a truck were in their possession.

At Poplar Bluff, Sgt. Kenneth Link of the highway patrol and a Butler county deputy sheriff, arrested Darrel Caudel, 19, Hayward, in Butler county, and a 15-year-old juvenile, charged with five breakins in the Poplar Bluff area.

Wayne County Sheriff Grover Dildine, Greenville, reported to patrol headquarters that he had apprehended Robert S. Robinson, Springfield, in Monroe, La., who had in his possession a 1955 Ford, stolen in St. Louis.

An investigation also revealed that a 1964 Ford had been left at a Phillips 66 service station in Greenville, believed to have been stolen by the Springfield man in St. Louis.

Tires, batteries and other accessories had been taken from the Greenville station.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes must carry a rabbit's foot in his pocket or possess extra sensory preception.

His decision to stay in Missouri during the governors cruise to the Virgin Islands proved to be an excellent choice.

Americans were reminded that their governors were lolling in the sun on deck of a ship in tropical waters, partially or wholly at public expense, at a time of crisis.

The crisis was not entirely of their making but the image of the junketing and politicking governors frolicking on a vacation type cruise made less fortunate citizens ill from ailments ranging from mild indigestion to red faced indignation.

There was violence in the streets as peace marchers sought to interfere with the draft, even penetrate the Pentagon.

There was concern in the financial community about higher interest costs, inflation, tighter money and excessive union demands and settlements spotlighted by Ford Motor Company strike and the lavish settlement in favor of the automobile workers.

All this at a time Congress twiddled its thumbs in indecision.

These are primarily national concerns but governors added nothing but an impression of carefree, apathy and selfish indifference by cruising while the home front seethed with anarchy and gloomy problems difficult to solve.

The focus on the misplaced White House telegram during the governors' voyage added nothing to their stature or to that of President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The arm twisting attempt by Johnson seeking endorsement of the Vietnam war, therefore 100 per cent acceptance of his approach to fighting it, backfired.

Since a leak occurred, he'll make a major administration effort to find a scapegoat.

His requests for these endorsements always have been improper, out of the range of what governors are expected to do.

He has compounded the felony by persisting in it in the face of growing opposition.

Gov. Ronald Reagon may have been unethical in making the telegram public but since when has there been ethics in national politics?

The exposure gave a comic opera air to the cruise and headlined its political nature.

Normally this would produce nothing more than a good laugh.

These are serious times.

All the exposure of the telegram accomplished was to put both the President and the governors in a bad light for political horseplay when the hour called desperately for something greater and more substantial in behalf of the American people.

If the government continues to interfere with the price of gasoline, as it has done in the price of natural gas, it will establish another dangerous precedent which will prove to be a great disservice to the American people."

The National Safety Council, which recently issued a policy statement endorsing the slow-moving vehicle emblem (SMV), is urging responsible traffic safety agencies to make every possible effort to encourage the use of this emblem on tractors, harrows and other farm machinery.

Another aim of the Council is educating the public to recognize the emblem as the identifying symbol for a slow-moving vehicle, one that travels at speeds of 25 miles per hour or less.

The emblem, with a reflective red border and a fluorescent blaze-orange center, is triangular. It is visible for at least 500 feet, both day and night, alerting drivers to the hazard of approaching -- perhaps too quickly -- a slow-moving vehicle.

Widespread use of the emblem is expected to reduce rear-end collisions if it is properly displayed on farm machinery.

The Council has received reports that the emblem is being used in an improper way. Some of these improper uses include SMV emblems:

--Mounted on fence posts near private drives on farms.

--Mounted upside down on farm vehicles or attached to the top of tall poles.

--Used on vehicles capable of speeds in excess of 25 miles per hour.

Even non-standard home-made emblems, utilizing nonreflective materials, have been reported.

According to safety experts, the SMV emblem, for maximum visibility during the day and night, should be mounted at the rear center of the vehicle, three to five feet from ground level. At night, the emblem must be in the path of a car's headlights to be seen.

KREMLIN INFIGHTING IS PERIL TO U.S.

Just as there are Americans who hunt for Communists under every bed, there apparently are Russians who can only explain setbacks to Soviet foreign policy in terms of a capitalist conspiracy.

According to Harrison Salisbury of the New York Times--who aroused a controversy a few months ago with stories from North Vietnam that uncritically repeated Communist figures on civilian bombing casualties - a fierce hawk vs. dove battle is rocking the walls of the Kremlin.

It has been building for months, says Salisbury, and was finally triggered by the war in the Middle East.

The doves, led by Premier Kosygin, Party Secretary Brezhnev and President Podgorny, who hope to achieve an accommodation with the United States, so far seem to have prevailed. But the hawks -- lesser party officials and some generals-have not given up on the Arab defeat by creating a new military crisis in some other area of the world.

The hawks firmly believe that the United states was behind both the rightist military coup in Greece and the Israeli action against the Arabs, that it is being "intractible" in Vietnam and that ip is "making gestures" toward Communist China while doing everything it can to embarrass the Soviet Union.

If Salisbury's sources are to be depended on, the prospects of eventual U.S. Russian understanding are not as bright as many have come to think.

Americans have good reason to read current history as nothing but a series of Communist plots, whether such reading is always correct or not. This country, however, prides itself on being an open society. U.S. foreign policy, at least in its broad aspects, is a matter of public knowledge and debate.

America's chagrin over the institution of the editorial page of every newspaper in the land, as well as in government statements.

If Washington had as much influence over Israel as the Kremlin hawks insist, Israeli troops would still be sweating on their side of the Sinai border waiting for the Arab extermination squads.

For high - placed and presumably well-in-formed Russians to believe otherwise, and to try to square the American military effort in Vietnam with a cozying up to Peking, requires an ability to ignore acts and twist logic that would be ludicrous if it were not so ominous.

The Kremlin's internal struggle is one more reason why the United States must keep open, and well - traveled, every avenue of communication with the more reasonable men who fortunately still have the final say in Russia.

END OF THE SURPLUSES

Since the end of World War II, the United States has been helping needy people all over the world. We have given them billions of dollars of money, food, clothing, medicine, arms and material. We have also lent them tons of money at very low interest rates. For more than 20 years we have been an apparently bottomless well of aid and assistance. But now the bottom can be sighted and it looks as if the other nations are going to have to start depending upon themselves a great deal more.

The most recent example is the declining level of our grain surpluses. In 1961 the US had a stockpile of 1.4 billion bushels of wheat. But before the 1966 harvest began, the stockpile was down to 536 million bushels, and at the start of the 1967 harvest it's expected that the wheat stockpile will have shrunk to around 400 million bushels.

It is the same story with corn and other feed grains. This stockpile has dwindled from 84.7 million tons in 1961 to 43 million tons before the 1966 harvest and will drop to 26 million tons by the 1967 yarvest.

Just how dangerously low our grain reserves are can be seen from the figures established by the National Agricultural Advisory Commission which recommended the following reserves: for wheat: 630 million bushels, as against an estimated 400 million bushels in June, 1967; for corn and other feed grains: a recommended reserve of 45 million tons as against an estimated 26 million tons in September, 1967.

As a result, the Administration has had to reshape its international war on hunger, and admitted that with the world's population increasing at the rate of one million or more each week, not even the rich fertile fields of the United States can feed the world.

President Johnson himself has commented: "The only long-term solution is self - help . . . Food for Freedom grants will be made only where the country receiving the grant demonstrates its own willingness to help win its war on hunger."

We only wish he had said it sooner.

And if you think food prices have been high, wait until the surpluses have been completely exhausted.

THE ATTACK ON ADVERTISING

Up to a point, the criticisms of modern advertising remind us of the criticisms of modern politics. We can sympathize with both. The appeals to consumer choice -- just like the appeals for political support -- are not always addressed to the most admirable of human traits. And in both cases criticism can serve a useful purpose in improving the quality.

But the attack on advertising has moved into an area where the analogy no longer holds. Even the most critical commentators accept the fact that politics is a necessary form of activity, and that we would run grave risks in attempting to inhibit or censor political appeals to the public.

By contrast many of the critics of advertising seem to assume that it is an inherently useless, and even vicious, form of human action. Underlying the attack on advertising is a widespread assumption that we have nothing to lose, and much to gain by restricting and discouraging advertising activity.

This is a dangerous illusion. Advertising is as indespensable in an economy of free consumer choice as politicking is in a democracy.

Commercial advertising serves the essential purpose of informing consumers of the choices open to them. Any impairment of the channels for conveying such information would damage the interests of the consuming public.

The opponents of advertising customarily scoff at such an argument. How, they ask, can advertising purvey genuine information to the public when it is organized and paid for by interested parties? Would it not be better for the public to get their information on a product from experts who don't really care whether or not they buy it?

This argument may sound impressive until we recall that investigation by disinterested experts is not always the best way of getting at the truth. When a case is tried in our courts, the information presented to the jury is not organized for them by a staff of people who are indifferent to the decision. Instead, we depend on the interested parties on both sides of the case to prepare and organize the information on which the jury will make its judgment. A thousand years of history suggests that this is a reasonably effective means of gathering relevant facts.

Adversary proceedings are usually the best way of ensuring that all sides of a question will be looked at. And this is what we have in the competitive advertising of American firms.

Recently, a chief line of attack on advertising has been the allegation that it corrupts the public taste. Specifically, it is argued that, in the absence of advertising, the country would have chosen to spend more of its income through government for such laudable purposes as beautification, education and welfare, and correspondingly less of its income for the selfish purpose of individual consumtion.

The notion that the advocates of government spending are not given a fair opportunity to present their case to the public seems almost laughable. We read the news stories describing proposed government spending programs on the front pages of our newspapers. The appeals for private spending appear in paid advertisements on the inside pages.

Another line of attack on advertising is that it weakens competition by developing consumer loyalty for particular products and companies. What this seems to mean is that some firms are more successful in their advertising than others. The idea that competition can be strengthened by penalizing those who are successful at it doesn't spund convincing.

H. L. Hunt Says

ALPACA REVISITED

A PLACA, written by H. L. Hunt in 1960 presented a Constitution which would be helpful to the people of emerging nations who wanted to try to govern themselves. It was a situation where they would either be ruled by a dicatator who was running adjacent nations, set up their own dicatator or adopt a Constitution modeled after another country's Constitution.

Many nations had already adopted Constitutions modeled after the Constitution of the USA which did not seem to fit the temperament of their people, especially the Latins, as well as it does the people of the USA.

ALPACA meticulously avoided saying anything against Communists but ALPACA was either feared more or "hated more" by pro-Communists than anything confronting them. Well-written articles were published ridiculing and discrediting ALPACA and its author, and frequent letters "to the editor" still appear in the same vein.

A few months ago I began changing measures in the ALPACA Constitution which made it less vulnerable to the attacks from the Farleft, still preserving its best provisions.

The Vatican translated it into Mandarin and Russian, the Jesuits into Vietnamese. The Constitutional Assembly in South Vietnam requested help in preparing the Constitution they were to write from various sources including the Vietnamese Government, Generals of the Vietnam Army, Generals in the U.S. Army and diplomats, but issued a statement that oilman H. L. Hunt was the only one who responded, sending each member a copy of his new ALPACA Consitituion.

The Constitution was also translated into Spanish, German, Serbo-Croation, Arabic and several other languages and will be helpful in revising State Constitutions.

Among new books written by H. L. Hunt, ALPACA REVISITED will be available October 27, carrying the new ALPACA Constitution and the romance of the mythical international Freedom Team which planned it. HLH

NEW YORK (AP) - "I've been out of pocket and depressed, but never really desperate," said Julie Christie.

Then one of the entertainment world's most awesome properties studied her flawless features in a hand mirror as she applied makeup and said:

"I've come up with spots all over my face. I'm a mass of hot spots. It's the central heating."

The brilliant young British actress, most recently starred in "Far from the Madding Crowd," was having brunch in the West Side apartment of a friend here.

She was wearing a nondescript robe that didn't take attention away from the pendulous promise of a full lower lip and sea-deep eyes of fathomless gray.

As she answered questions, she ate some broiled sausages, picking them up with carelessly fastidious fingers, then trifled with a cantaloupe whose orange cavity had been thrust full of large ripe strawberries.

"You realize that people, after all, aren't monsters and won't eat you up," she said, explaining that she felt less shy than on previous visips to America.

What is life to Julie?

"It is trees and water and buildings and people. It is nice things. It is something given only once and therefore to be made the very most of."

Everybody has the blues now and then, Julie? How do you cure them?

"I'm so masochistic I give myself over to them completely. When I am bored with them and they with me, we part company. There are so many worthwhile things around."

How does a young girl, who used to carry an air mattress and camp in the apartment of pals because she lacked rent money, feel now that she is in the comfortable area of the great big dollar that confirms success.

"Well" - she toyed with a lock of her hair like a brooding child - "it's not a lethargic situation. It's stimulating. You're constantly having demands made upon you, which is nice."

What is your biggest virtue, Julie?

"Self - honesty. I don't lie to myself, whatever I do to other people."

And your biggest fault, Julie?

"It may be self-interest, but that doesn't seem to narrow it down enough. Wait a moment, and I'll go ask."

She left the room to consult a friend, returned and said: "She said that if evasiveness wasn't my biggest vice, it was certainly vice-like. Also bossiness. Actually, however, I'm not really domineering. I just want everybody to feel and think the way I do.

"Everything about life is so rare and marvelous - even the awful."

What are the things you like, Julie?

"Oh, sunflowers - cats - great and wide and wild expanses of nature - the feeling of moleskins-the nostalgic smell of lilacs, which reminds me of my childhood - the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace - the walk of ducks and the way guinea pigs move-all kinds of food - and particular companions."

And your dislikes?

"Oh, chickens - getting up in the morning and going to bed at night when I still want to stay up-giving up anything - gherkins, discourtesy, English sandwiches, and any sort of viciousness or vindictiveness, particularly in young people, because I feel they should know better."

And your goals now, Julie Christie?

"I'd like to have more control over my mind really, not to be such-not to be -Oh, I'll leave it at that really.

"Like a lot of people, the thing I am most afraid of is humiliation - violent humiliation."

She rose then with the unaware but ever - ready grace of a gazelle and said goodby, instantly prepared for the next step of her self - expression, her next portrayal.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON SAYS: "Can't win" feeling permeates Washington as in Lincoln's Day; all news seems bad to man in White House; house economizers may kill antipoverty bill.

WASHINGTON --- There's a sort of "you can't win" feeling around Washington. It must be similar to the pessimism that split the nation in Lincoln's Day 103 years ago.

Outwardly Washington moves on about the way it always has-- the sessions of congress, the tourists visiting the shooting gallery at the FBI, the cocktail parties along embassy row, the chatter about Lynda Bird's wedding, but it's not a happy atmosphere.

The foreign diplomats, most of them friendly to the United States, talk about the war, the division in the country, the peace march. They feel depressed. Most of them represent governments which are tied to the United States economically and politically. If we get bogged down, they get bogged down too.

They see a nation which they have always admired because of its ideals losing those ideals, becoming cynical, isolationist, drifting. They know when the world's strongest nation drifts, the weaker nations drift too. The United States has been the guiding rudder for Europe and Latin America, even for parts of Africa and Asia. We have fed the world, helped guide the world, initiated most of the peace efforts for the world.

But now we are bogged down in a so-called brushfire war where we can't launch a single peace proposal off the ground. They float from time to time, like the balloons sold to children along Pennsylvania Avenue. Then they burst, and with them burst the hopes for peace.

The October sun smiles on the maple trees turning red and gold in Lafayette park across from the White House. But the sun carries no warmth. It can't seem to penetrate the thick walls of the White House.

Inside sits a man who looks out at the turning leaves, the fountains splashing on the south lawn -- still green in the October sunshine--to the spindle of granite towering into the sky in honor of George Washington. There, near the monument grounds, have been crowds of people, most of them honest, sincere people protesting the war. He had given them permission to march, overruling some of his cabinet advisers, because he felt the right of protest must prevail.

On the other side of the White House in Lafayette park have been more demonstrations, marching, protesting people carrying placards and strumming guitars. How tired the man gets of those guitars. Sometimes he can't sleep at night for hearing them. He can't sleep much anyway. About 3:14 a.m. He awakens automatically -- like clockwork -- to get the report on bombing over North Vietnam-- how many targets hit, how many planes lost, how many men captured.

He reaches for the phone alongside the big four-poster bed in which Lincoln slept. The same old-fasioned canopy is over the bed, but a modern telephone is alongside over which the man receives messages from all over the world -- good news and bad-- though most of the news these days seem bad.

One message from Ambassador John Gronouski in Warsaw reports on his discussions with the Chinese, the usual conference, stiff with formal; no cracks opening for peace.

Another message from Ambassador Bunker in Saigon: The Canadian Ambassador in Hanoi has talked to Ho Chi Minh and other members of the cabinet; they say there'll be no peace talks until after November, 1968, when there'll be a new man in the White House, a Republican President. Then, only then, will they talk peace.

The man in the big bed ponders these messages. Lying there as Lincoln must have lain, he reviews the tribulations of Lincoln.

It was in the summer of 1864 that a group of prominent Republicans organized a "Lincoln withdrawal" movement. A senate friend said of the President: "I fear he is a failure." Lincoln himself figured he could not be re-elected. A confederate general wrote his wife: "We learn from gentlement recently from the north that the peace party is growing rapidly -- that McClellan will be elected and that his election will bring peace - provided always that we continue to hold our own against Yankee armies."

Loudest congressional critics were hawks. The Detroit Free Press reported: "Not a single senator can be named as favorable to Lincoln's renomination for President."

Most of the press was dovish and critical. There was economic discontent in opposition to the war. In New York riots 1,000 people were killed or wounded. Unlike the freedom to demonstrate which the man protected recently, the rebels were subject to martial law. More than 13,000 people were arrested. Habeas Corpus in many areas was suspended.

The New York Times said that all that could save us was selection of a peace commission to negotiate with Jefferson Davis.

One hundred years have passed since then. Times, mused the tall man in the long four-poster bed, have not really changed at all.

CONGRESS BOGGED DOWN

The house leadership, under aging speaker John McCormack, has bogged down so completely that the government not only is in a financial bind now but may be in one next year also. Congress has passed only 6 of the 14 regular appropriations bills that were due last June. This has forced almost the entire federal government to depend on stop-gap financing.

Equally important, most departments already are preparing their budgets for the next fiscal year without knowing how much congress is going to allow them this year. As a result, they are working and planning in the dark. This not only has caused uncertainty, but waste and inefficiency.

Note - the house rode roughshod over its leadership again last week by voting for a meat-axe spending slash, which indiscriminately cut all civil programs alike, without any attempt to determine which are good and which are bad.

Secret samplings now indicate that the house not only may override the leadership again when the antipoverty program comes up for a vote, but may actually wipe out the entire program.

CONGRESS SWINGS WILD

Slashes Agency Which Ends Strikes Paralyzing Arms Flow to Vietnam

Washington, D. C.: -- At 12:01 a.m., Oct. 11, the big federal ordnance plant in grimy Scranton, Pa., stopped hatching its special brand of eggs -- 175 mm shells. This harassed the Pentagon far more than the impending stampede of mass picnicking and picketing due 10 days later.

Those 175s are destined for the Vietnamese front. The shells must flow steadily into the pipeline. For reasons which the Pentagon should explain to the public, the Scranton installation, run by the Chamberlain Co., is the sole producer of 175s. Furthermore, it whips out some mighty important 155s as well -- that is, when it is producing.

It went dead on Oct. 11 when 1,100 machinists went out on strike. The Pentagon production and supply brass burned up the wires.

They said, in effect, U. S. military forces in Vietnam just could not take that single, local strike for two weeks. But the lines held fast. The work force stayed "on the bricks." Then the government's specialist in reason, William Simkin, Director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, "invited" the belligerents to his headquarters here.

That was on Tuesday, Oct. 17. In three days of the most professional persuasiveness Simkin and his colleagues got a settlement. Ratification by the militant machinists, whose Local 847, like so many others, is virtually autonomous, came two days later on Sunday. By the morning of Monday, Oct. 23, the big "eggs" began rolling into the pipeline again. Otherwise there would have bee a shell shortage over there.

That's the Scranton story. Virtually no one but the home town folks -- and a lot of U. S. artillery men -- generally take notice. But between 50 and 75 times a year, the same script is reenacted -- different characters, different union, different employer, different locale, but same hairline escape from danger on some front near the "DMZ."

And each time, Bill Simkin the Quaker, gentle but with a whim of iron when it comes to pumping that pipeline, gets the men off the bricks, the licensed producer off the dime and the military materiel moving again.

Simkin is no wizard of odds. He sweats it out, but not alone. With him across the land are 250 Mediation Service specialists. Mostly they, as he, work anonymously. Almost always at the final minute the last hurrah goes to some outside specialist.

Now comes an economy tidal wave from Congress. An across-the-board budget cut has been ordered in all agencies all the way from the Dept. of Interior's Wild Life Division to Mediation. Simkin's agency is budgeted at a puny $7 million annually. That's about what it costs to send up one rain spotting satellite. That's about what it costs to keep a 35 - man delegation living luxuriously for several years for marathon debates on esoteric matters in Geneva, Paris or Rome.

Yet the Mediation Service, which that Vietnam pipeline filled, as the Pentagon will testify, now faces, a slash even in its tight mini-budget.

This proposed slash would slice at least 50, and probably 60, skilled mediators from Simkin's staff. This cut could cripple the Service.

Apparently Congress has forgotten that the Pentagon, to save hundreds of millions of dollars, has taken a calculated risk on the military production front. Right now a thousand wartime items are needed which would be junked if peace broke out of Southeast Asia. Therefore, few civilian manufacturers rush in to revamp their facilities to make shells, or mini seven pound rapid-fire guns, or special engines. Therefore, the Defense Dept. has had to set production of key items in a single source plant. This is the case with special engines for troop carrying helicopters now being made in Avco's Lycoming Division plant, Stratford, Conn. This is the case with a special dive bombers' speed control unit, also made only at Stratford. This is the case with the Colt Industries' M-16 rifle. This is true in production of special radar parts, naval torpedoes, air-to-air missiles and special gun ball powder.

Yet each of these "items" has been struck during this war. And each time, Bill Simkin and his men patiently reopened the pipeline.

What price economy now?

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes must carry a rabbit's foot in his pocket or possess extra sensory preception.

His decision to stay in Missouri during the governors cruise to the Virgin Islands proved to be an excellent choice.

Americans were reminded that their governors were lolling in the sun on deck of a ship in tropical waters, partially or wholly at public expense, at a time of crisis.

The crisis was not entirely of their making but the image of the junketing and politicking governors frolicking on a vacation type cruise made less fortunate citizens ill from ailments ranging from mild indigestion to red faced indignation.

There was violence in the streets as peace marchers sought to interfere with the draft, even penetrate the Pentagon.

There was concern in the financial community about higher interest costs, inflation, tighter money and excessive union demands and settlements spotlighted by Ford Motor Company strike and the lavish settlement in favor of the automobile workers.

All this at a time Congress twiddled its thumbs in indecision.

These are primarily national concerns but governors added nothing but an impression of carefree, apathy and selfish indifference by cruising while the home front seethed with anarchy and gloomy problems difficult to solve.

The focus on the misplaced White House telegram during the governors' voyage added nothing to their stature or to that of President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The arm twisting attempt by Johnson seeking endorsement of the Vietnam war, therefore 100 per cent acceptance of his approach to fighting it, backfired.

Since a leak occurred, he'll make a major administration effort to find a scapegoat.

His requests for these endorsements always have been improper, out of the range of what governors are expected to do.

He has compounded the felony by persisting in it in the face of growing opposition.

Gov. Ronald Reagon may have been unethical in making the telegram public but since when has there been ethics in national politics?

The exposure gave a comic opera air to the cruise and headlined its political nature.

Normally this would produce nothing more than a good laugh.

These are serious times.

All the exposure of the telegram accomplished was to put both the President and the governors in a bad light for political horseplay when the hour called desperately for something greater and more substantial in behalf of the American people.

The National Safety Council, which recently issued a policy statement endorsing the slow-moving vehicle emblem (SMV), is urging responsible traffic safety agencies to make every possible effort to encourage the use of this emblem on tractors, harrows and other farm machinery.

Another aim of the Council is educating the public to recognize the emblem as the identifying symbol for a slow-moving vehicle, one that travels at speeds of 25 miles per hour or less.

The emblem, with a reflective red border and a fluorescent blaze-orange center, is triangular. It is visible for at least 500 feet, both day and night, alerting drivers to the hazard of approaching -- perhaps too quickly -- a slow-moving vehicle.

Widespread use of the emblem is expected to reduce rear-end collisions if it is properly displayed on farm machinery.

The Council has received reports that the emblem is being used in an improper way. Some of these improper uses include SMV emblems:

--Mounted on fence posts near private drives on farms.

--Mounted upside down on farm vehicles or attached to the top of tall poles.

--Used on vehicles capable of speeds in excess of 25 miles per hour.

Even non-standard home-made emblems, utilizing nonreflective materials, have been reported.

According to safety experts, the SMV emblem, for maximum visibility during the day and night, should be mounted at the rear center of the vehicle, three to five feet from ground level. At night, the emblem must be in the path of a car's headlights to be seen.

KREMLIN INFIGHTING IS PERIL TO U.S.

Just as there are Americans who hunt for Communists under every bed, there apparently are Russians who can only explain setbacks to Soviet foreign policy in terms of a capitalist conspiracy.

According to Harrison Salisbury of the New York Times--who aroused a controversy a few months ago with stories from North Vietnam that uncritically repeated Communist figures on civilian bombing casualties - a fierce hawk vs. dove battle is rocking the walls of the Kremlin.

It has been building for months, says Salisbury, and was finally triggered by the war in the Middle East.

The doves, led by Premier Kosygin, Party Secretary Brezhnev and President Podgorny, who hope to achieve an accommodation with the United States, so far seem to have prevailed. But the hawks -- lesser party officials and some generals-have not given up on the Arab defeat by creating a new military crisis in some other area of the world.

The hawks firmly believe that the United states was behind both the rightist military coup in Greece and the Israeli action against the Arabs, that it is being "intractible" in Vietnam and that ip is "making gestures" toward Communist China while doing everything it can to embarrass the Soviet Union.

If Salisbury's sources are to be depended on, the prospects of eventual U.S. Russian understanding are not as bright as many have come to think.

Americans have good reason to read current history as nothing but a series of Communist plots, whether such reading is always correct or not. This country, however, prides itself on being an open society. U.S. foreign policy, at least in its broad aspects, is a matter of public knowledge and debate.

America's chagrin over the institution of the editorial page of every newspaper in the land, as well as in government statements.

If Washington had as much influence over Israel as the Kremlin hawks insist, Israeli troops would still be sweating on their side of the Sinai border waiting for the Arab extermination squads.

For high - placed and presumably well-in-formed Russians to believe otherwise, and to try to square the American military effort in Vietnam with a cozying up to Peking, requires an ability to ignore acts and twist logic that would be ludicrous if it were not so ominous.

The Kremlin's internal struggle is one more reason why the United States must keep open, and well - traveled, every avenue of communication with the more reasonable men who fortunately still have the final say in Russia.

END OF THE SURPLUSES

Since the end of World War II, the United States has been helping needy people all over the world. We have given them billions of dollars of money, food, clothing, medicine, arms and material. We have also lent them tons of money at very low interest rates. For more than 20 years we have been an apparently bottomless well of aid and assistance. But now the bottom can be sighted and it looks as if the other nations are going to have to start depending upon themselves a great deal more.

The most recent example is the declining level of our grain surpluses. In 1961 the US had a stockpile of 1.4 billion bushels of wheat. But before the 1966 harvest began, the stockpile was down to 536 million bushels, and at the start of the 1967 harvest it's expected that the wheat stockpile will have shrunk to around 400 million bushels.

It is the same story with corn and other feed grains. This stockpile has dwindled from 84,7 million tons in 1961 to 43 million tons before the 1966 harvest and will drop to 26 million tons by the 1967 yarvest.

Just how dangerously low our grain reserves are can be seen from the figures established by the National Agricultural Advisory Commission which recommended the following reserves: for wheat: 630 million bushels, as against an estimated 400 million bushels in June, 1967; for corn and other feed grains: a recommended reserve of 45 million tons as against an estimated 26 million tons in September, 1967.

As a result, the Administration has had to reshape its international war on hunger, and admitted that with the world's population increasing at the rate of one million or more each week, not even the rich fertile fields of the United States can feed the world.

President Johnson himself has commented: "The only long-term solution is self - help . . . Food for Freedom grants will be ceiving the grant demonstrates its own willingness to help win its war on hunger."

We only wish he had said it sooner.

And if you think food prices have been high, wait until the surpluses have been completely exhausted.

THE ATTACK ON ADVERTISING

Up to a point, the criticisms of modern advertising remind us of the criticisms of modern politics. We can sympathize with both. The appeals to consumer choice -- just like the appeals for political support -- are not always addressed to the most admirable of human traits. And in both cases criticism can serve a useful purpose in improving the quality.

But the attack on advertising has moved into an area where the analogy no longer holds. Even the most critical commentators accept the fact that politics is a necessary form of activity, and that we would run grave risks in attempting to inhibit or censor political appeals to the public.

By contrast many of the critics of advertising seem to assume that it is an inherently useless, and even vicious, form of human action. Underlying the attack on advertising is a widespread assumption that we have nothing to lose, and much to gain by restricting and discouraging advertising activity.

This is a dangerous illusion. Advertising is as indespensable in an economy of free consumer choice as politicking is in a democracy.

Commercial advertising serves the essential purpose of informing consumers of the choices open to them. Any impairment of the channels for conveying such information would damage the interests of the consuming public.

The opponents of advertising customarily scoff at such an argument. How, they ask, can advertising purvey genuine information to the public when it is organized and paid for by interested parties? Would it not be better for the public to get their information on a product from experts who don't really care whether or not they buy it?

This argument may sound impressive until we recall that investigation by disinterested experts is not always the best way of getting at the truth. When a case is tried in our courts, the information presented to the jury is not organized for them by a staff of people who are indifferent to the decision. Instead, we depend on the interested parties on both sides of the case to prepare and organize the information on which the jury will make its judgment. A thousand years of history suggests that this is a reasonably effective means of gathering relevant facts.

Adversary proceedings are usually the best way of ensuring that all sides of a question will be looked at. And this is what we have in the competitive advertising of American firms.

Recently, a chief line of attack on advertising has been the allegation that it corrupts the public taste. Specifically, it is argued that, in the absence of advertising, the country would have chosen to spend more of its income through government for such laudable purposes as beautification, education and welfare, and correspondingly less of its income for the selfish purpose of individual consumtion.

The notion that the advocates of government spending are not given a fair opportunity to present their case to the public seems almost laughable. We read the news stories describing proposed government spending programs on the front pages of our newspapers. The appeals for private spending appear in paid advertisements on the inside pages.

Another line of attack on advertising is that it weakens competition by developing consumer loyalty for particular products and companies. What this seems to mean is that some firms are more successful in their advertising than others. The idea that competition can be strengthened by penalizing those who are successful at it doesn't spund convincing.

H. L. Hunt Says

ALPACA REVISITED

APLACA, written by H. L. Hunt in 1960 presented a Constitution which would be helpful to the people of emerging nations who wanted to try to govern themselves. It was a situation where they would either be ruled by a dicatator who was running adjacent nations, set up their own dicatator or adopt a Constitution modeled after another country's Constitution.

Many nations had already adopted Constitutions modeled after the Constitution of the USA which did not seem to fit the temperament of their people, especially the Latins, as well as it does the people of the USA.

ALPACA meticulously avoided saying anything against Communists but ALPACA was either feared more or "hated more" by pro-Communists than anything confronting them. Well-written articles were published ridiculing and discrediting ALPACA and its author, and frequent letters "to the editor" still appear in the same vein.

A few months ago I began changing measures in the ALPACA Constitution which made it less vulnerable to the attacks from the Farleft, still preserving its best provisions.

The Vatican translated it into Mandarin and Russian, the Jesuits into Vietnamese. The Constitutional Assembly in South Vietnam requested help in preparing the Constitution they were to write from various sources including the Vietnamese Government, Generals of the Vietnam Army, Generals in the U.S. Army and diplomats, but issued a statement that oilman H. L. Hunt was the only one who responded, sending each member a copy of his new ALPACA Consitituion.

The Constitution was also translated into Spanish, German, Serbo-Croation, Arabic and several other languages and will be helpful in revising State Constitutions.

Among new books written by H. L. Hunt, ALPACA REVISITED will be available October 27, carrying the new ALPACA Constitution and the romance of the mythical international Freedom Team which planned it. HLH

NEW YORK (AP) - "I've been out of pocket and depressed, but never really desperate," said Julie Christie.

Then one of the entertainment world's most awesome properties studied her flawless features in a hand mirror as she applied makeup and said:

"I've come up with spots all over my face. I'm a mass of hot spots. It's the central heating."

The brilliant young British actress, most recently starred in "Far from the Madding Crowd," was having brunch in the West Side apartment of a friend here.

She was wearing a nondescript robe that didn't take attention away from the pendulous promise of a full lower lip and sea-deep eyes of fathomless gray.

As she answered questions, she ate some broiled sausages, picking them up with carelessly fastidious fingers, then trifled with a cantaloupe whose orange cavity had been thrust full of large ripe strawberries.

"You realize that people, after all, aren't monsters and won't eat you up," she said, explaining that she felt less shy than on previous visips to America.

What is life to Julie?

"It is trees and water and buildings and people. It is nice things. It is something given only once and therefore to be made the very most of."

Everybody has the blues now and then, Julie? How do you cure them?

"I'm so masochistic I give myself over to them completely. When I am bored with them and they with me, we part company. There are so many worthwhile things around."

How does a young girl, who used to carry an air mattress and camp in the apartment of pals because she lacked rent money, feel now that she is in the comfortable area of the great big dollar that confirms success.

"Well" - she toyed with a lock of her hair like a brooding child - "it's not a lethargic situation. It's stimulating. You're constantly having demands made upon you, which is nice."

What is your biggest virtue, Julie?

"Self - honesty. I don't lie to myself, whatever I do to other people."

And your biggest fault, Julie?

"It may be self-interest, but that doesn't seem to narrow it down enough. Wait a moment, and I'll go ask."

She left the room to consult a friend, returned and said: "She said that if evasiveness wasn't my biggest vice, it was certainly vice-like. Also bossiness. Actually, however, I'm not really domineering. I just want everybody to feel and think the way I do.

"Everything about life is so rare and marvelous - even the awful."

What are the things you like, Julie?

"Oh, sunflowers - cats - great and wide and wild expanses of nature - the feeling of moleskins-the nostalgic smell of lilacs, which reminds me of my childhood - the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace - the walk of ducks and the way guinea pigs move-all kinds of food - and particular companions."

And your dislikes?

"Oh, chickens - getting up in the morning and going to bed at night when I still want to stay up-giving up anything - gherkins, discourtesy, English sandwiches, and any sort of viciousness or vindictiveness, particularly in young people, because I feel they should know better."

And your goals now, Julie Christie?

"I'd like to have more control over my mind really, not to be such-not to be -Oh, I'll leave it at that really.

"Like a lot of people, the thing I am most afraid of is humiliation - violent humiliation."

She rose then with the unaware but ever - ready grace of a gazelle and said goodby, instantly prepared for the next step of her self - expression, her next portrayal.

The October sun smiles on the maple trees turning red and gold in Lafayette park across from the White House. But the sun carries no warmth. It can't seem to penetrate the thick walls of the White House.

Inside sits a man who looks out at the turning leaves, the fountains splashing on the south lawn -- still green in the October sunshine--to the spindle of granite towering into the sky in honor of George Washington. There, near the monument grounds, have been crowds of people, most of them honest, sincere people protesting the war. He had given them permission to march, overruling some of his cabinet advisers, because he felt the right of protest must prevail.

On the other side of the White House in Lafayette park have been more demonstrations, marching, protesting people carrying placards and strumming guitars. How tired the man gets of those guitars. Sometimes he can't sleep at night for hearing them. He can't sleep much anyway. About 3:14 a.m. He awakens automatically -- like clockwork -- to get the report on bombing over North Vietnam--how many targets hit, how many planes lost, how many men captured.

He reaches for the phone alongside the big four-poster bed in which Lincoln slept. The same old-fasioned canopy is over the bed, but a modern telephone is alongside over which the man receives messages from all over the world -- good news and bad--though most of the news these days seem bad.

One message from Ambassador John Gronouski in Warsaw reports on his discussions with the Chinese, the usual conference, stiff with formal; no cracks opening for peace.

Another message from Ambassador Bunker in Saigon: The Canadian Ambassador in Hanoi has talked to Ho Chi Minh and other members of the cabinet; they say there'll be no peace talks until after November, 1968, when there'll be a new man in the White House, a Republican President. Then, only then, will they talk peace.

The man in the big bed ponders these messages. Lying there as Lincoln must have lain, he reviews the tribulations of Lincoln.

It was in the summer of 1864 that a group of prominent Republicans organized a "Lincoln withdrawal" movement. A senate friend said of the President: "I fear he is a failure." Lincoln himself figured he could not be re-elected. A confederate general wrote his wife: "We learn from gentlement recently from the north that the peace party is growing rapidly -- that McClellan will be elected and that his election will bring peace - provided always that we continue to hold our own against Yankee armies."

Loudest congressional critics were hawks. The Detroit Free Press reported: "Not a single senator can be named as favorable to Lincoln's renomination for President."

Most of the press was dovish and critical. There was economic discontent in opposition to the war. In New York riots 1,000 people were killed or wounded. Unlike the freedom to demonstrate which the man protected recently, the rebels were subject to martial law. More than 13,000 people were arrested. Habeas Corpus in many areas was suspended.

The New York Times said that all that could save us was selection of a peace commission to negotiate with Jefferson Davis.

One hundred years have passed since then. Times, mused the tall man in the long four-poster bed, have not really changed at all.

CONGRESS BOGGED DOWN

The house leadership, under aging speaker John McCormack, has bogged down so completely that the government not only is in a financial bind now but may be in one next year also. Congress has passed only 6 of the 14 regular appropriations bills that were due last June. This has forced almost the entire federal government to depend on stop-gap financing.

Equally important, most departments already are preparing their budgets for the next fiscal year without knowing how much congress is going to allow them this year. As a result, they are working and planning in the dark. This not only has caused uncertainty, but waste and inefficiency.

Note - the house rode roughshod over its leadership again last week by voting for a meat-axe spending slash, which indiscriminately cut all civil programs alike, without any attempt to determine which are good and which are bad.

Secret samplings now indicate that the house not only may override the leadership again when the antipoverty program comes up for a vote, but may actually wipe out the entire program.

CONGRESS SWINGS WILD

Slashes Agency Which Ends Strikes Paralyzing Arms Flow to Vietnam

Washington, D. C.: -- At 12:01 a.m., Oct. 11, the big federal ordnance plant in grimy Scranton, Pa., stopped hatching its special brand of eggs -- 175 mm shells. This harassed the Pentagon far more than the impending stampede of mass picnicking and picketing due 10 days later.

Those 175s are destined for the Vietnamese front. The shells must flow steadily into the pipeline. For reasons which the Pentagon should explain to the public, the Scranton installation, run by the Chamberlain Co., is the sole producer of 175s. Furthermore, it whips out some mighty important 155s as well -- that is, when it is producing.

It went dead on Oct. 11 when 1,100 machinists went out on strike. The Pentagon production and supply brass burned up the wires.

They said, in effect, U. S. military forces in Vietnam just could not take that single, local strike for two weeks. But the lines held fast. The work force stayed "on the bricks." Then the government's specialist in reason, William Simkin, Director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, "invited" the belligerents to his headquarters here.

That was on Tuesday, Oct. 17. In three days of the most professional persuasiveness Simkin and his colleagues got a settlement. Ratification by the militant machinists, whose Local 847, like so many others, is virtually autonomous, came two days later on Sunday. By the morning of Monday, Oct. 23, the big "eggs" began rolling into the pipeline again. Otherwise there would have bee a shell shortage over there.

That's the Scranton story. Virtually no one but the home town folks -- and a lot of U. S. artillery men -- generally take notice. But between 50 and 75 times a year, the same script is reenacted -- different characters, different union, different employer, different locale, but same hairline escape from danger on some front near the "DMZ."

And each time, Bill Simkin the Quaker, gentle but with a whim of iron when it comes to pumping that pipeline, gets the men off the bricks, the licensed producer off the dime and the military materiel moving again.

Simkin is no wizard of odds. He sweats it out, but not alone. With him across the land are 250 Mediation Service specialists. Mostly they, as he, work anonymously. Almost always at the final minute the last hurrah goes to some outside specialist.

Now comes an economy tidal wave from Congress. An across-the-board budget cut has been ordered in all agencies all the way from the Dept. of Interior's Wild Life Division to Mediation. Simkin's agency is budgeted at a puny $7 million annually. That's about what it costs to send up one rain spotting satellite. That's about what it costs to keep a 35 - man delegation living luxuriously for several years for marathon debates on esoteric matters in Geneva, Paris or Rome.

Yet the Mediation Service, which that Vietnam pipeline filled, as the Pentagon will testify, now faces, a slash even in its tight mini-budget.

This proposed slash would slice at least 50, and probably 60, skilled mediators from Simkin's staff. This cut could cripple the Service.

Apparently Congress has forgotten that the Pentagon, to save hundreds of millions of dollars, has taken a calculated risk on the military production front. Right now a thousand wartime items are needed which would be junked if peace broke out of Southeast Asia. Therefore, few civilian manufacturers rush in to revamp their facilities to make shells, or mini seven pound rapid-fire guns, or special engines. Therefore, the Defense Dept. has had to set production of key items in a single source plant. This is the case with special engines for troop carrying helicopters now being made in Avco's Lycoming Division plant, Stratford, Conn. This is the case with a special dive bombers' speed control unit, also made only at Stratford. This is the case with the Colt Industries' M-16 rifle. This is true in production of special radar parts, naval torpedoes, air-to-air missiles and special gun ball powder.

Yet each of these "items" has been struck during this war. And each time, Bill Simkin and his men patiently reopened the pipeline.

What price economy now?

Youth Shows up 2 Months After Funeral Rites

PARSIPPANY, N. J. (AP) -- "This is unbelievable. It's like returning from the dead," said 19-year-old Bruce Burkan.

Bruce -- missing and presumed dead for two months -- walked into his home and told his mother that he had no idea of what happened or where he had been.

"He looked very confused and had several cuts on his face," said Mrs. Theodore Burkan, who was Mrs. New Jersey of 1966.

Her son had been missing since Aug. 22, when he left his fiancee, Valerie Schnetzer, 19, on an Asbury Park beach to put a coin in a parking meter.

Bruce said Wednesday he remembers being in Asbury Park and leaving the beach. The next thing he remember, he said, was being in a bus terminal Tuesday in Newark.

Mrs. Burkan said she was upstairs on the phone Tuesday when Bruce walked in. She stood in complete shock for a few minutes and then "flew" down to him.

She said similar scenes took place as his three brothers, Barry, 13, Lee 9, and Wayne, 15, came home from school.

Mrs. Burkan showed Bruce a rememberance book she kept, showing pictures and stories of memorial services conducted for him. More than 200 area residents attended.

"I never dreamed so many people cared about me," the youth said.

MRS. ARTHUR JOHNSON of Prairie Village, Kan., Missouri state president of the American Association of University Women, will arrive in Sikeston tonight. She will preside at the area conference Saturday at the Holiday Inn.

Connie Marble Celebrates 12th Birthday

Connie Marble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Marble, 309 Malcolm, celebrated her 12th birthday last Friday at a bunking party.

Youth Shows up 2 Months After Funeral Rites

PARISPPANY, N. J. (AP) -- "This is unbelievable. It's like returning from the dead," said 19-year-old Bruce Burkan.

Bruce -- missing and presumed dead for two months -- walked into his home and told his mother that he had no idea of what happened or where he had been.

"He looked very confused and had several cuts on his face," said Mrs. Theodore Burkan, who was Mrs. New Jersey of 1966.

Her son had been missing since Aug. 22, when he left his fiancee, Valerie Schnetzer, 19, on an Asbury Park beach to put a coin in a parking meter.

Bruce said Wednesday he remembers being in Asbury Park and leaving the beach. The next thing he remember, he said, was being in a bus terminal Tuesday in Newark.

Mrs. Burkan said she was upstairs on the phone Tuesday when Bruce walked in. She stood in complete shock for a few minutes and then "flew" down to him.

She said similar scenes took place as his three brothers, Barry, 13, Lee 9, and Wayne, 15, came home from school.

Mrs. Burkan showed Bruce a rememberance book she kept, showing pictures and stories of memorial services conducted for him. More than 200 area residents attended.

"I never dreamed so many people cared about me," the youth said.

MRS. ARTHUR JOHNSON of Prairie Village, Kan., Missouri state president of the American Association of University Women, will arrive in Sikeston tonight. She will preside at the area conference Saturday at the Holiday Inn.

Connie Marble Celebrates 12th Birthday

Connie Marble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Marble, 309 Malcolm, celebrated her 12th birthday last Friday at a bunking party.

Guests went on a scavenger hunt and told ghost tales at midnight. Refreshments were served.

Guests were Lisa Inman, Teresa Houchin, Jeanie Britt, Kathy Eaken, Frances Riddle, Regina Eason, Lee Clayton, Patty Ross, Melanie Shell, Melody Powell, Ronda Yarbrough, Kim Yarbrough and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Yarbrough.

Pictures Sought

The Daily Standard will publish sharp, clear black and white pictures of pre-school age children submitted by parents in this area. The child's name, age, the parents' names and address should accompany pictures.

Indians Call For Bulldog Homecoming

The steadily improving Jackson Indians call for a northern conference game tonight at public school stadium. Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m.

Tutored by Tony Calwhite, the Indians bring their 4-3 overall slate and 1-2 conference mark into tonight's homecoming football match against the Bulldog eleven of Coach William R (Bill) Sapp.

Jackson, having one of its better years under the new coaching of Calwhite, has a young team and has absorbed division losses at the hands of Cape Girardeau Central and Poplar Bluff while beating Kennett.

The Bulldogs are 5-0-1 and are in second place in the Northern Conference, with a 3-0-1 slate.

Although the Indians are young, having five seniors, five juniors and one sophomore starting, the size of the Indian tribe is somewhat large with the tackle's tipping the scales over 200 pounds, in Juniors Don Rouse at 255 and Bruce Miller at 203. Another 200 pound plus player is Junior Center David Rouse at 246 pounds.

Jackson's attack is spearheaded by senior Quarterback Ron Ashman, Tailback Billy Lewis and Fullback Dennis Turner.

A 29-yard touchdown run by Jackson halfback Billy Lewis was the only score of a hard-fought defensive battle at Perryville last Saturday night between the Indians and home team St. Vincent's.

Lewis' gallop came in the initial quarter, and only one other occasion did either team threaten, that St. Vincent's in the waning minutes of the game. The home team had marched to the Jackson 9-yard line when the game-ending horn sounded.

Indian quarterback passed for 56 yards, hitting on eight short heaves.

The victory was the fourth this season for Jackson, in seven outings. It was only the second loss for St. Vincent's in seven games.

Both squads should be at top strength and an overflow crowd is expected for a big night of football.

In the past two visits the Indians have made to the public school stadium, they have ruined the Bulldogs' homecoming celebration.

One reason given is the habit of the team to look over the Indians to their next opponent or being down after getting up for the Tigers, who the Bulldogs generally meet each season before the Indians. In 1963 they tied Sikeston and in 1965 they beat the Bulldogs in the last 48 seconds of the game, 19-13.

Jackson, going with the trend that is being set around the district and nation in taking to the air, can hit for the long strike, something the Bulldogs have had trouble with this season.

Dennis Snelling seems to have recovered from his pulled muscle injury and is set at the halfback slot for tonight's game.

Senior End Bob McCord is a questionable starter for tonight's homecoming game for the Dogs. . . after suffering a sprained ankle early in the week playing basketball.

Highlighting homecoming activities will be a dance held after tonight's game.

Tonight's schedule seems to give the area prognosticators an easy time, but as many know, it could be a big night of upsets.

Since it seems a rather easy night ahead...at least for the prognosticators...lets get down to calling the winners.

Dexter At Chaffee --- The Red Devils might catch the Bearcats down after failing in their last two meetings... We think coach Tom Telle's 11 will rise to the occasion, however, and move a game closer to its final game meeting with Malden. Dexter 35, Chaffee 19.

Poplar Bluff at Charleston -- We can only say...The Mules had better watch their step...or rather Charlie Babb...The Bluejays can be explosive...just ask the Cairo Pilots. John Brown and Company need this one...They should get it. Poplar Bluff 28, Charleston 0.

Jackson At Sikeston--One little, two little - 11 little Indians are in for a rough night...even the presence of Leo Schade can't pull the Indians out of their burning teepees ...Watch those Dogs bite...How about it Mike...can you hit as hard as Dave?..Show us. Sikeston 35, Jackson 6.

Malden at East Prairie -- Boy, those Waves are getting high...They had better take it easy tonight and save a little of that hurricane punch for the last game of the season... The Eagles will only make a first half stand...but after that its all over. Malden 48, East Prairie 6.

Cape Girardeau at Kennett -- Cape may think they'll get a breather...but don't count on it... The Indians might come to live...Cape 27, Kennett 13.

Piggott, Ark. at Hayti--Now sweat for these Indians....Or will they run into trouble...We think the Arkansasans will pose some kind of problem. Hayti 20, Piggott 13.

Perryville at Ste. Genevieve -- The Bulldogs will roll over the once mighty Valle 11...Perryville 21, Valle 14.

Illmo-Scott City at Caruthersville -- Jerry Bethune's eleven will have a field night...its nice...I bet, to have one possible easy win on a team's schedule...or is it. Caruthersville 38, ISC 0.

That's that...remember...you boys don't have to believe what we think...do what you can to prove us wrong...except Jackson...

Sooners Meet Tigers

COLUMBIA -- Oklahoma, a team with a scoring thrust of about 20 points more per game than Missouri has been accustomed to yielding, turns its high-voltage backs loose on the Tigers in a sell - out Big Eight football game here Saturday afternoon.

At least 55,000 onlookers will watch his struggle between the league's most attack-minded club -- and a team well-schooled in defensive lore. Both have lost just once in regular season play-- Missouri to Colorado 23-9, and Oklahoma to Texas, 9-7.

Missouri is 4-1 overall, and Oklahoma 3-1 -- but the Sooners are unbeaten in conference play.

Offensively, the Sooners lead the Big Eight in rushing, total yardage, scoring and scoring defense. Mizzou's best licks have been on defense. Coach Dan Devine's warriors are second in three departments -- yielding the fewest rushing yards, total yards and points.

So the battle - lines are drawn. The old rivals, meeting for the 58th time, will showcase the loop's four top running backs on the same turf. For Oklahoma, sophomore tailback Steve Owens and Ron Shotts are Nos. 1 and 4 in this week's rushing list -- while Mizzou's Barry Lischner and Gary Kombrink are 2-3.

The Sooners can claim an edge in fancier running ability off Owen's 5.5 - yard average, and Shotts' 5.3 - figure -- plus the fact they've played one less game. Mizzou's tough-hewed fullback, Lischner, carries a 4.4-yard average, and Kombrink 4.0.

Owens, a 6-ft. 2 and 193-pound rookie, has in the judgment of Tiger Scout Ron Taylor "really made a team of O.U." The quick Miami Okla. rookie, who alternates with Shoots, has gained more than 100 rushing yards in three of four games, and scored three times against K-State last week.

If the rival ground attacks are somewhat comparable, new coach Chuck Fairbanks -- who played end on one of Devine's freshman squads at Michigan State -- can feel pretty smug about his Sooners' passing skill.

In Bobby Warmack, poised junior quarterback, O.U. owns the league's best marksman. So far he has completed 66 percent of his tosses, and only two have been intercepted. Eddie Hinton, fleet wingback, is sixth in the conference on 14 receptions for 226 yards.

By contrast, Mizzou's Kombrink is eighth among the circuit's regular quarterbacks in passing yardage -- and not one Tiger is listed among the leading pass-catchers.

Defensively, Oklahoma's standout is nose-guard Granville Liggins -- a quick play-spoiler with valid all-America credentials. His counterpart in the Bengal lineup is John Douglas, senior co-captain and linebacker.

The speedy Sooners figure to resemble S.M.U., the 1967 opening foe, in overall quickness -- but they possess much more running versatility. They've given up an average of 4 points per game, Mizzou 7.8. The Tigers meanwhile, have not yielded a second - half touchdown in five games -- outscoring their rivals, 43 to 6.

It's the 100th game in Tigerland for Devine, whose record here is 68-24-7. In Saturday's game, his Bengals will try to pull off a statistical "first"-- three straight wins over Oklahoma. No Mizzou team ever has beaten the Sooners three in a row.

His personal log against O.U. is 3-5-1. In the overall series, Oklahoma leads 33-19-5.

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Former British Open champion Peter Thomson Thursday increased his lead to six strokes by firing his second straight 69 in the Australian Open Golf Championship.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pete Larson, a rookie halfback from Cornell, Thursday was activated by the Washington Redskins to fill the vacancy left when the NFL team put Joe Don Looney on waivers.

Former New Madrid Cage Star Assisting Bulldogs' McDaniel

A former New Madrid high school basketball standout Joe Beaher will assist Basketball Coach N. P. McDaniel during the 1967-68 cage season.

Coach Beaher, who was coached by the New Madrid high school coach, Carroll Compton, played on the Indian's county championship team of 1961 and is a defensive specialist.

He is teaching at the junior high school. This is his first year of teaching, since getting his degree at Cape Girardeau State last summer.

With more than half the college football season finished, 50 teams, including 11 major elevens, still are undefeated and untied.

North Dakota State and Kearney, Neb., State lead the list with seven victories, according to a survey by The Associated Press today.

The 11 major teams with unsullied records include Southern California, UCLA, Virginia Tech, East Carolina, North Carolina State and Wyoming with six victories; Colorado and Indiana with five, and Dartmouth, Harvard and Tulsa with four.

Three Rivers Wins Pre-Season Contest Over Mineral Area

POPLAR BLUFF -- Three Rivers junior college eked out a 74-73 basketball practice win over Mineral Area junior college of Flat River Wednesday night at the Poplar high school gymnasium.

Keith Stacey sank a free throw with three seconds remaining in the game.

Leading the scoring for the Raiders were Hayti's 6-5 Ben Johnson and Puxico's 6-5 Jim King, both with 18 markers.

Brockman netted 24 for the visitors while teammate Crites hit 10.

Three Rivers trailed 38-33 at half but outscored Mineral area 41-35 in the second half for the win.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Some 215,342 more fans paid to see the Cincinnati Reds play at home in the 1967 season than in the previous year, club officials announced Wednesday.

A total of 958,300 persons passed through the turnstiles. The figure ranks seventh on the Reds' all-time attendance chart and represents an average turnout of 13,127 per game.

Gideon and Keiser Tie

GIDEON -- The Gideon Bulldogs Thursday night tied the Keiser, Ark., high football team 13-13. All scoring was in the first half.

Keiser opened the scoring early in the first quarter when it plunged over from the one-yard line and kicked the extra point.

Three minutes later, Ron Lowery scored from the 19-yard line, and G. Murphy kicked the extra point, to tie the score.

Gideon then kicked to Keiser. Two plays later, Keiser fumbled and Cunningham recovered for Gideon on the 20-yard line. Elam advanced the ball to the one-yard line, and J. Pickard plunged through for the score. The extra point was missed.

In the middle of the second quarter, Keiser scored on a 20-yard pass, but missed the extra point, to end the scoring at the half 13-13.

The last half was played in heavy winds. Passing plays were stopped but Gideon was able to penetrate to the Keiser 20-yard line, but unable to cross the goal line. Keiser never advanced closer than the Gideon 40.

The summary for Gideon and Keiser were, total yards, 241 and 190; first downs, 14 and 8; yards passes, 61 and 65; punt average, 51 and 40; penalties, 60 and 40 yards.

Notre Dame Tops Pre-Season Voting

Notre Dame, the only team from Southeast Missouri to place in the 1966-67 state high school baseball tournament is the pre-season favorite as the top team for 1967-68 by voting of 15 area coaches for the Daily Standard.

Defending champion Matthews ranks fifth in the pre-season outlook after finishing first last season and receiving; the Daily Standard trophy for being named number one team in final balloting.

Coach John Haas' Bulldogs beat out the Matthews quintet in the finals of the Ilmo-Scott City regional tournament last season and advanced to win third place in the state finals at Columbia.

Only two votes separated the Bulldogs and second place Howardville while third place Kennett and fourth place Oran ended in a deadlock three votes back of the Hawks.

Class M teams dominate the list with five being named in Notre Dame, Oran, Matthews, Richland and Gideon. Class L schools have three representatives in Kennett, Sikeston and Charleston while Class S is represented by Howardville and Clarkton.

Indians Call For Bulldog Homecoming

The steadily improving Jackson Indians call for a northern conference game tonight at public school stadium. Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m.

Tutored by Tony Calwhite, the Indians bring their 4-3 overall slate and 1-2 conference mark into tonight's homecoming football match against the Bulldog eleven of Coach William R(Bill) Sapp.

Another 200 pound plus player is Junior Center David Rouse at 246 pounds.

Jackson's attackis spearheaded by senior Quarterback Ron Ashman, Tailback Billy Lewis and Fullback Dennis Turner.

A 29-yard touchdown run by Jackson halfback Billy Lewis was the only score of a hard-fought defensive battle at Perryville last Saturday night between the Indians and home team St. Vincent's.

Lewis' gallop came in the initial quarter, and only one other occasion did either team threaten, that St. Vincent's in the waning minutes of the game. The home team had marched to the Jackson 9-yard line when the game-ending horn sounded.

In the past two visits the Indians have made to the public school stadium, they have ruined the Bulldogs' homecoming celebration.

One reason given is the habit of the team to look over the Indians to their next opponent or being down after getting up for the Tigers, who the Bulldogs generally meet each season before the Indians. In 1963 they tied Sikeston and in 1965 they beat the Bulldogs in the last 48 seconds of the game, 19-13.

Jackson, going with the trend that is being set around the district and nation in taking to the air, can hit for the long strike, something the Bulldogs have had trouble with this season.

Dennis Snelling seems to have recovered from his pulled muscle injury and is set at the halfback slot for tonight's game.

Senior End Bob McCord is a questionable starter for tonight's homecoming game for the Dogs. . . after suffering a sprained ankle early in the week playing basketball.

Highlighting homecoming activities will be a dance held after tonight's game.

Tonight's schedule seems to give the area prognosticators an easy time, but as many know, it could be a big night of upsets.

Since it seems a rather easy night ahead...at least for the prognosticators...lets get down to calling the winners.

Dexter At Chaffee --- The Red Devils might catch the Bearcats down after failing in their last two meetings... We think coach Tom Telle's 11 will rise to the occasion, however, and move a game closer to its final game meeting with Malden. Dexter 35, Chaffee 19.

Poplar Bluff at Charleston -- We can only say...The Mules had better watch their step...or rather Charlie Babb...The Bluejays can be explosive...just ask the Cairo Pilots. John Brown and Company need this one...They should get it. Poplar Bluff 28, Charleston 0.

Jackson At Sikeston--One little, two little - 11 little Indians are in for a rough night...even the presence of Leo Schade can't pull the Indians out of their burning teepees ...Watch those Dogs bite...How about it Mike...can you hit as hard as Dave?..Show us. Sikeston 35, Jackson 6.

Malden at East Prairie -- Boy, those Waves are getting high...They had better take it easy tonight and save a little of that hurricane punch for the last game of the season... The Eagles will only make a first half stand...but after that its all over. Malden 48, East Prairie 6.

Cape Girardeau at Kennett -- Cape may think they'll get a breather...but don't count on it... The Indians might come to live...Cape 27, Kennett 13.

Piggott, Ark. at Hayti--Now sweat for these Indians....Or will they run into trouble...We think the Arkansasans will pose some kind of problem. Hayti 20, Piggott 13.

Perryville at Ste. Genevieve -- The Bulldogs will roll over the once mighty Valle 11...Perryville 21, Valle 14.

Ilmo-Scott City at Caruthersville -- Jerry Bethune's eleven will have a field night...its nice...I bet, to have one possible easy win on a team's schedule...or is it. Caruthersville 38, ISC 0.

That's that...remember...you boys don't have to believe what we think...do what you can to prove us wrong...except Jackson...

Sooners Meet Tigers

COLUMBIA -- Oklahoma, a team with a scoring thrust of about 20 points more per game than Missouri has been accustomed to yielding, turns its high-voltage backs loose on the Tigers in a sell - out Big Eight football game here Saturday afternoon.

At least 55,000 onlookers will watch his struggle between the league's most attack-minded club -- and a team well-schooled in defensive lore. Both have lost just once in regular season play-- Missouri to Colorado 23-9, and Oklahoma to Texas, 9-7.

Missouri is 4-1 overall, and Oklahoma 3-1 -- but the Sooners are unbeaten in conference play.

Offensively, the Sooners lead the Big Eight in rushing, total yardage, scoring and scoring defense. Mizzou's best licks have been on defense. Coach Dan Devine's warriors are second in three departments -- yielding the fewest rushing yards, total yards and points.

So the battle - lines are drawn. The old rivals, meeting for the 58th time, will showcase the loop's four top running backs on the same turf. For Oklahoma, sophomore tailback Steve Owens and Ron Shotts are Nos. 1 and 4 in this week's rushing list -- while Mizzou's Barry Lischner and Gary Kombrink are 2-3.

The Sooners can claim an edge in fancier running ability off Owen's 5.5 - yard average, and Shotts' 5.3 - figure -- plus the fact they've played one less game. Mizzou's tough-hewed fullback, Lischner, carries a 4.4-yard average, and Kombrink 4.0.

Owens, a 6-ft. 2 and 193-pound rookie, has in the judgment of Tiger Scout Ron Taylor "really made a team of O.U." The quick Miami Okla. rookie, who alternates with Shoots, has gained more than 100 rushing yards in three of four games, and scored three times against K-State last week.

If the rival ground attacks are somewhat comparable, new coach Chuck Fairbanks -- who played end on one of Devine's freshman squads at Michigan State -- can feel pretty smug about his Sooners' passing skill.

In Bobby Warmack, poised junior quarterback, O.U. owns the league's best marksman. So far he has completed 66 percent of his tosses, and only two have been intercepted. Eddie Hinton, fleet wingback, is sixth in the conference on 14 receptions for 226 yards.

By contrast, Mizzou's Kombrink is eighth among the circuit's regular quarterbacks in passing yardage -- and not one Tiger is listed among the leading pass-catchers.

Defensively, Oklahoma's standout is nose-guard Granville Liggins -- a quick play-spoiler with valid all-America credentials. His counterpart in the Bengal lineup is John Douglas, senior co-captain and linebacker.

The speedy Sooners figure to resemble S.M.U., the 1967 opening foe, in overall quickness -- but they possess much more running versatility. They've given up an average of 4 points per game, Mizzou 7.8. The Tigers meanwhile, have not yielded a second - half touchdown in five games -- outscoring their rivals, 43 to 6.

It's the 100th game in Tigerland for Devine, whose record here is 68-24-7. In Saturday's game, his Bengals will try to pull off a statistical "first"-- three straight wins over Oklahoma. No Mizzou team ever has beaten the Sooners three in a row.

His personal log against O.U. is 3-5-1. In the overall series, Oklahoma leads 33-19-5.

Former New Madrid Cage Star Assisting Bulldogs' McDaniel

A former New Madrid high school basketball standout Joe Beaher will assist Basketball Coach N. P. McDaniel during the 1967-68 cage season.

Coach Beaher, who was coached by the New Madrid high school coach, Carroll Compton, played on the Indian's county championship team of 1961 and is a defensive specialist.

He is teaching at the junior high school. This is his first year of teaching, since getting his degree at Cape Girardeau State last summer.

Three Rivers Wins Pre-Season Contest Over Mineral Area

POPLAR BLUFF -- Tnree Rivers junior college eked out a 74-73 basketball practice win over Mineral Area junior college of Flat River Wednesday night at the Poplar high school gymnasium.

Keith Stacey sank a free throw with three seconds remaining in the game.

Leading the scoring for the Raiders were Hayti's 6-5 Ben Johnson and Puxico's 6-5 Jim King, both with 18 markers.

Brockman netted 24 for the visitors while teammate Crites hit 10.

Three Rivers trailed 38-33 at half but outscored Mineral area 41-35 in the second half for the win.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Some 215,342 more fans paid to see the Cincinnati Reds play at home in the 1967 season than in the previous year, club officials announced Wednesday.

A total of 958,300 persons passed through the turnstiles. The figure ranks seventh on the Reds' all-time attendance chart and represents an average turnout of 13,127 per game.

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Former British Open champion Peter Thomson Thursday increased his lead to six strokes by firing his second straight 69 in the Australian Open Golf Championship.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pete Larson, a rookie halfback from Cornell, Thursday was activated by the Washington Redskins to fill the vacancy left when the NFL team put Joe Don Looney on waivers.

Gideon and Keiser Tie

GIDEON -- The Gideon Bulldogs Thursday night tied the Keiser, Ark., high football team 13-13. All scoring was in the first half.

Keiser opened the scoring early in the first quarter when it plunged over from the one-yard line and kicked the extra point.

Three minutes later, Ron Lowery scored from the 19-yard line, and G. Murphy kicked the extra point, to tie the score.

Gideon then kicked to Keiser. Two plays later, Keiser fumbled and Cunningham recovered for Gideon on the 20-yard line. Elam advanced the ball to the one-yard line, and J. Pickard plunged through for the score. The extra point was missed.

In the middle of the second quarter, Keiser scored on a 20-yard pass, but missed the extra point, to end the scoring at the half 13-13.

The last half was played in heavy winds. Passing plays were stopped but Gideon was able to penetrate to the Keiser 20-yard line, but unable to cross the goal line. Keiser never advanced closer than the Gideon 40.

The summary for Gideon and Keiser were, total yards, 241 and 190; first downs, 14 and 8; yards passes, 61 and 65; punt average, 51 and 40; penalties, 60 and 40 yards.

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — David Pearson averaged 117 miles per hour in a 1967 Ford Wednesday to win the pole position in Sunday's American Stock Car Race.

Notre Dame Tops Pre-Season Voting

Notre Dame, the only team from Southeast Missouri to place in the 1966-67 state high school baseball tournament is the pre-season favorite as the top team for 1967-68 by voting of 15 area coaches for the Daily Standard.

Defending champion Matthews ranks fifth in the pre-season outlook after finishing first last season and receiving; the Daily Standard trophy for being named number one team in final balloting.

Coach John Haas' Bulldogs beat out the Matthews quintet in the finals of the Ilmo-Scott City regional tournament last season and advanced to win third place in the state finals at Columbia.

Only two votes separated the Bulldogs and second place Howardville while third place Kennett and fourth place Oran ended in a deadlock three votes back of the Hawks.

Class M teams dominate the list with five being named in Notre Dame, Oran, Matthews, Richland and Gideon. Class L schools have three representatives in Kennett, Sikeston and Charleston while Class S is represented by Howardville and Clarkton.

Daily Standard Pre-Season Poll

(1) Notre Dame
(2) Howardville
(3) Kennett
(4) Oran
(5) Matthews
(6) Richland
(7) Clarkton
(8) Sikeston
(9) Charleston
(10) Gideon

Others receiving votes: Neelyville, Bloomfield, Bell City; Southland; Delta and Dexter.

Highways Designated For Beautification

JEFFERSON CITY -- The Missouri State Highway Commission has designated a system of interstate and state Primary highways to allow compliance with billboard, junkyard and scenic easement laws passed by the 73rd General Assembly and a truck law passed by the 74th general assembly.

Approval was necessary, the commission said, because no state highway commission ever has designated such an official system for Missouri.

The statutes regarding billboards, junkyards and scenic easements were passed by the legislature in 1966 to comply with federal laws regulating those measures alongside interstate and primary systems highways. Penalty for a state's failure to comply with the federal laws is the withholding of federal aid highway funds.

The new truck law, passed by the legislature earlier this year, went into effect Oct. 13. It allows trucks 65 feet long to operate on interstate and primary highways and five miles on either side.

Interstate mileage designated by the commission is Missouri's authorized 1,120 miles of interstate system routes, of which about 625 miles now are completed and open to traffic.

Primary system routes approved total 6,745 miles throughout Missouri. Of this total, 6,490 miles are in rural areas and 255 miles are in urban areas.

The commission selected the routes making up the Primary system by the use of "functional classification," which pertains to the type of service a highway should provide.

Those routes not designated as Interstate or Primary highways are identified as state supplementary routes, the Commission explained.

Interstate System

Routes in the Interstate System are:

Interstate route 29; 35; 44; 55; 57; 70; 155; 229; 244; 255; 270; 435; 470; 635; and 670.

Primary System

Routes of which all or part were included in the Primary system are:

U.S. route 24; 36; 40; 50; 50 Bypass; 54; 59; 60; 61; 62; 63; 65; 67; 69; 71; 71 Bypass; 71 Alternate; 136; 160; and 169.

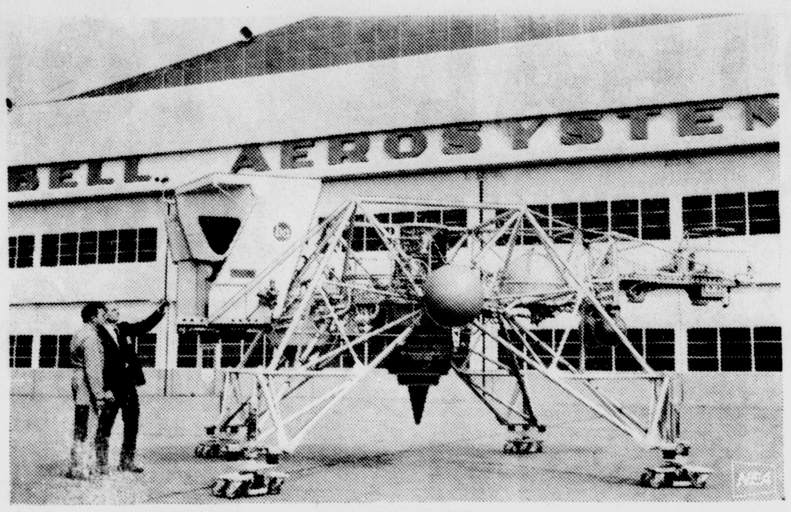

Missouri Routes 5; 6; 7; 8; 10; 13; 14; 15; 17; 19; 21; 22; 25; 28; 31; 32; 34; 37; 39; 41; 42; 47; 49; 51; 52; 53; 58; 64; 68; 72; 74; 76; 77; 79; 80; 82; 83; 84; 86; 91; 92; 100; 105; 116; 148; 164; 171; and 240.

HOW DO YOU PRACTICE for moon landings? One answer may be this Lunar Landing Training Vehicle, built as a wingless, free-flying simulator of the module that may ferry spacemen from an orbiting space capsule to the lunar surface. A 4,200-pound thrust turbofan engine lifts five-sixths of the vehicle's weight for training purposes, and the remaining one-sixth gravity is comparable to gravity on the moon. Astronauts seated in the cockpit at left, therefore, can maneuver in a moonlike situation by controlling two small rocket engines.

Conferences Continuous At Missouri University

COLUMBIA -- Conferences on a wide variety of subjects are in session on and off the campuses of the University of Missouri. The talks might concern highly-technical problems facing astronauts or physicians, new fire-fighting and law enforcement techniques, or improving agricultural practices.

Almost 90,000 persons were enrolled in short courses and conferences last year. Another 16,000 took courses for credit off campus. Utilizing all methods, the University through its Extension Division, reached directly one and a quarter million different citizens of the state last year.

These activities are part of the continuing education department of the state-wide Extension Services. Programs are held in practically every Missouri town and city during the year.

Importance of the extension service work was emphasized recently by University of Missouri President John C. Weaver in presenting the University's budget for 1968-69 to the General Assembly. In it he requested $78.6 million for operations and $62.5 million for capital improvements.

"Through four campuses and 115 county offices this University must continue to do its best to bring the benefits of teaching, research and service to every section of the state, to every facet of society, to every profession," President Weaver said.

"Many groups are looking to the University for formal and informal educational programs that will extend the knowledge and upgrade the skills and competencies of their individual members."

President Weaver said the increasing importance of continuing education is reflected in the additional resources asked for the extension program. The University has requested $6,004,290 from the General Assembly for work on the four campuses and in 115 Missouri counties, an increase of $1,180,362 from appropriations last year. The largest items in the budget are for salaries of staffs in the University Centers in the various counties. Dr. Weaver said that the budget request represents 36.5 per cent of the division's income, as federal sources provide 42.9 per cent of the income, the various counties 13.8 per cent, and fees add 6.8 per cent.

Missourians who benefit from this University service include those in such fields as health, business, agriculture, and education. Transportation, highway maintenance, traffic management, remedial reading instruction, school administration at various levels -- these are some of the conferences organized through the Extension Division.

As one of the Land-Grant institutions, the University has had notable success with its cooperative extension program working with farm and farm - related groups. However, in more recent years, while strengthening its farm programs, it has extended its efforts to provide urban citizens with opportunities to acquire useful information related to their particular needs. During the year, 3.5 million publications were distributed. Also made available were instructional films, TV and radio presentations and bulletins. All provided information about new and improved practices in almost all occupations, professions and industries.

President Weaver said that increases in resources are sought for each of the four campuses of the University to provide further development or expansion of extension services desired in all sections of the state.

At Columbia last year, 4,500 persons took part in extension-sponsored programs in business and public administration, 2,500 in education, 5,000 in engineering -- to name a few of the areas. More than 1,000 individuals completed a prescribed program in civil defense; 700 veterinarians participated in a program to acquaint them with new research; 231 law enforcement officers were provided training. Arson investigators, foresters, and practical nurses are among numerous specialized groups whose conferences are arranged by the Extension Service.

On the Columbia campus, plans call for strengthening of extension programs in agriculture, home economics, labor education, public administration as well as the graduate engineering program in Kansas City and the retraining and upgrading of school teachers.

At the University of Missouri at Kansas City, the Division for Continuing Education is one of the most rapidly developing segments of campus activities. The Division has established a strong campus and community base in such activities as development of management capabilities in both business and public administration, women's education, family service, cultural achievement, reading improvement, and the like. Its "Downtown Center" programs, established in the past year, show strong potential.

According to the budget request, "The University is actively moving toward seeking a solution of urban problems by directing its efforts toward the environmental fields in its research programs" and "graduates are being prepared to assume a leadership role in society." It goes on to say that the University of Missouri at Rolla has a unique advantage in its graduate engineering center in St. Louis, staffed by UMR faculty and attended by residents of the urban area. A greater awareness of the situation is seen in this direct contact with the problems of the area and the association with professional people.

The University of Missouri at St. Louis is facing tremendous opportunities in extension service that are approaching rapidly, but it has only a skeleton staff in its Extension Division. The Division is administered by a dean who has only 40 per cent of his time allotted to that position. An additional Educational Coordinator secretary are requested in the budget proposal to enable the Division to develop new programs, expand present ones, and secure additional outside funds. The budget request points out the need for employing an assistant to help the dean before completion by 1969 of a new building on the campus that will make the program expansion possible. It is also pointed out that more than 40 per cent of the population of the state is within daily commuting distance of the St. Louis campus.

Regional Planners To Prepare Budget

MALDEN - A resolution was approved by the Bootheel Regional Planning commission authorizing the chairman to appoint a budget committee to prepare a budget for the next year.

Pat Lea, president named W. H. Winchester Jr., Richard L. Davis and R. J. Dirks to the committee. Their task will be to prepare an operating budget and to submit a suggested means of assessment for participating towns and counties.

This proposed budget and assessment process is to be completed within 30 days and will be submitted at the next meeting of The Bootheel Planning Commission.

Members of the newly formed organization held their initial meeting last week at their headquarters in one of the briefing buildings at the Malden air base. Prior to the meeting the group was guest of the Chamber of Commerce at a dinner at the school cafeteria.

John Downing, president of the Chamber, welcomed the organization to Malden and informed them that the Chamber of Commerce and city government was prepared to work closely with them in their efforts.

At the meeting, the group heard George L. Bickel of Washington, D. C. explain the process by, which the Bootheel Planning Commission may apply for federal funds for operational purposes. Bickel is economic development officer of the Office of District and Area Planning.

He explained that the federal government will provide 75 per cent of the operating funds for the planning commission. The balance of funds must be provided by cities and counties participating.

There are six counties participating in the Bootheel Regional Planning commission. They are Scott Mississippi, New Madrid, Stoddard, Dunklin and Pemiscot. Also, some towns within these counties are participating and some are not. All towns in the tri-county area are participating.

Thus, if the first year's budget is estimated at $60,000 a total of $15,000 of this amount must be provided by participating counties and towns. Bickel said that some "in kind" credit will be allowed. He cited as an example that the EDA (Economic Development Administration) would allow credit for use of the building at the Malden Airport in lieu of rent.

After a budget is established and an assessment method agreed upon, the BRPC may apply to Washington for operating funds for a 12 month period.

These funds will be used to employ a district director (economic planner) a secretary, a part-time secretary, and general operating expenses.

Purpose of the BRPC is to provide a comprehensive plan for the economic development of the Bootheel area. It is not limited to such items as planning for sanitary, storm sewer and water systems, solid waste disposal, transportation integration, land use, open space, park and recreational areas, and improved governmental structuring. The comprehensive plan will also give appropriate thought to such human resource aspects as education, health, social services, mental health and employment.

BRPC will provide, upon request, planning assistance to counties and municipalities. It also may call upon the Missouri Department of Community Affairs for assistance. The MDCA's prime purpose is to coordinate work of federal, state and local programs of governmental nature.

Bickel said that there is little that the new BRPC can do until they set up a budget and submit it for approval. Once the federal funds are allocated then they can employ a director and go to work.

As much as 20 per cent of the juice of the full-grown cane plant is sugar.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

Mrs. Annie Musunga has spent her life in Christian commitment and the education of her people in Africa. The beginnings of her faith go back to her grandfather who became a Christian when he was a cook for the first Methodist missionaries in his native country of Zambia.

At the age of three Mrs. Musunga entered Mbereschi Missionary School in Zambia and upon the completion of her secondary education taught home economics, writing and arithmetic in a government school.

Mrs. Musunga is now headmistress of the Conference School for Women in Lubumshi, the Congo. She and three other teachers give instruction in domestic skills, hygiene, language and religious training to native ministers' wives and others from villages and towns. Also, she is a devoted wife and mother of seven children.

In recognition of her work at the school and her interest in the future of African women, Mrs. Musunga was chosen by the World Federation of Methodist Women as its first intern to the Methodist office at the church center for the United Nations in New York City. For the past year she has sat in on many meetings both at the U.N. and in various parts of the country. "The African people do not understand the words 'United Nations'," Mrs. Musunga states. "It is my wish to go back and tell my people of all I have learned."

Highways Designated For Beautification

JEFFERSON CITY -- The Missouri State Highway Commission has designatcd a system of interstate and state Primary highways to allow compliance with billboard, junkyard and scenic easement laws passed by the 73rd General Assembly and a truck law passed by the 74th general assembly.

Approval was necessary, the commission said, because no state highway commission ever has designated such an official system for Missouri.

The statutes regarding billboards, junkyards and scenic easements were passed by the legislature in 1966 to comply with federal laws regulating those measures alongside interstate and primary systems highways. Penalty for a state's failure to comply with the federal laws is the withholding of federal aid highway funds.

The new truck law, passed by the legislature earlier this year, went into effect Oct. 13. It allows trucks 65 feet long to operate on interstate and primary highways and five miles on either side.

Interstate mileage designated by the commission is Missouri's authorized 1,120 miles of interstate system routes, of which about 625 miles now are completed and open to traffic.

Primary system routes approved total 6,745 miles throughout Missouri. Of this total, 6,490 miles are in rural areas and 255 miles are in urban areas.

The commission selected the routes making up the Primary system by the use of "functional classification," which pertains to the type of service a highway should provide.

Those routes not designated as Interstate or Primary highways are identified as state supplementary routes, the Commission explained.

Interstate System

Routes in the Interstate System are:

Interstate route 29; 35; 44; 55; 57; 70; 155; 229; 244; 255; 270; 435; 470; 635; and 670.

Primary System

Routes of which all or part were included in the Primary system are:

U.S. route 24; 36; 40; 50; 50 Bypass; 54; 59; 60; 61; 62; 63; 65; 67; 69; 71; 71 Bypass; 71 Alternate; 136; 160; and 169.

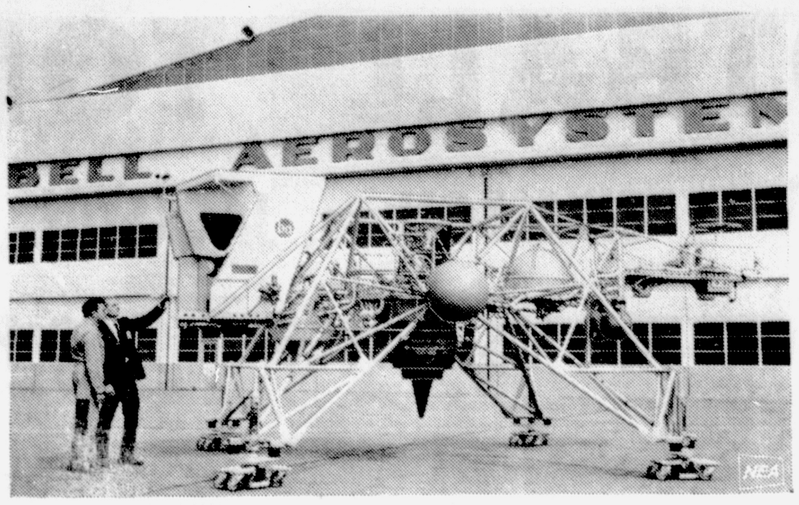

Missouri Routes 5; 6; 7; 8; 10; 13; 14; 15; 17; 19; 21; 22; 25; 28; 31; 32; 34; 37; 39; 41; 42; 47; 49; 51; 52; 53; 58; 64; 68; 72; 74; 76; 77; 79; 80; 82; 83; 84; 86; 91; 92; 100; 105; 116; 148; 164; 171; and 240.

HOW DO YOU PRACTICE for moon landings? One answer may be this Lunar Landing Training Vehicle, built as a wingless, free-flying simulator of the module that may ferry spacemen from an orbiting space capsule to the lunar surface. A 4,200-pound thrust turbofan engine lifts five-sixths of the vehicle's weight for training purposes, and the remaining one-sixth gravity is comparable to gravity on the moon. Astronauts seated in the cockpit at left, therefore, can maneuver in a moonlike situation by controlling two small rocket engines.

Conferences Continuous At Missouri University

COLUMBIA -- Conferences on a wide variety of subjects are in session on and off the campuses of the University of Missouri. The talks might concern highly-technical problems facing astronauts or physicians, new fire-fighting and law enforcement techniques, or improving agricultural practices.

Almost 90,000 persons were enrolled in short courses and conferences last year. Another 16,000 took courses for credit off campus. Utilizing all methods, the University through its Extension Division, reached directly one and a quarter million different citizens of the state last year.

These activities are part of the continuing education department of the state-wide Extension Services. Programs are held in practically every Missouri town and city during the year.

Importance of the extension service work was emphasized recently by University of Missouri President John C. Weaver in presenting the University's budget for 1968-69 to the General Assembly. In it he requested $78.6 million for operations and $62.5 million for capital improvements.

"Through four campuses and 115 county offices this University must continue to do its best to bring the benefits of teaching, research and service to every section of the state, to every facet of society, to every profession," President Weaver said.

"Many groups are looking to the University for formal and informal educational programs that will extend the knowledge and upgrade the skills and competencies of their individual members."

President Weaver said the increasing importance of continuing education is reflected in the additional resources asked for the extension program. The University has requested $6,004,290 from the General Assembly for work on the four campuses and in 115 Missouri counties, an increase of $1,180,362 from appropriations last year. The largest items in the budget are for salaries of staffs in the University Centers in the various counties. Dr. Weaver said that the budget request represents 36.5 per cent of the division's income, as federal sources provide 42.9 per cent of the income, the various counties 13.8 per cent, and fees add 6.8 per cent.

Missourians who benefit from this University service include those in such fields as health, business, agriculture, and education. Transportation, highway maintenance, traffic management, remedial reading instruction, school administration at various levels -- these are some of the conferences organized through the Extension Division.

As one of the Land-Grant institutions, the University has had notable success with its cooperative extension program working with farm and farm - related groups. However, in more recent years, while strengthening its farm programs, it has extended its efforts to provide urban citizens with opportunities to acquire useful information related to their particular needs. During the year, 3.5 million publications were distributed. Also made available were instructional films, TV and radio presentations and bulletins. All provided information about new and improved practices in almost all occupations, professions and industries.

President Weaver said that increases in resources are sought for each of the four campuses of the University to provide further development or expansion of extension services desired in all sections of the state.

At Columbia last year, 4,500 persons took part in extension-sponsored programs in business and public administration, 2,500 in education, 5,000 in engineering -- to name a few of the areas. More than 1,000 individuals completed a prescribed program in civil defense; 700 veterinarians participated in a program to acquaint them with new research; 231 law enforcement officers were provided training. Arson investigators, foresters, and practical nurses are among numerous specialized groups whose conferences are arranged by the Extension Service.

On the Columbia campus, plans call for strengthening of extension programs in agriculture, home economics, labor education, public administration as well as the graduate engineering program in Kansas City and the retraining and upgrading of school teachers.

At the University of Missouri at Kansas City, the Division for Continuing Education is one of the most rapidly developing segments of campus activities. The Division has established a strong campus and community base in such activities as development of management capabilities in both business and public administration, women's education, family service, cultural achievement, reading improvement, and the like. It goes on to say that the University of Missouri at Rolla has a unique advantage in its graduate engineering center in St. Louis, staffed by UMR faculty and attended by residents of the urban area. A greater awareness of the situation is seen in this direct contact with the problems of the area and the association with professional people.

The University of Missouri at St. Louis is facing tremendous opportunities in extension service that are approaching rapidly, but it has only a skeleton staff in its Extension Division. The Division is administered by a dean who has only 40 per cent of his time allotted to that position. An additional Educational Coordinator secretary are requested in the budget proposal to enable the Division to develop new programs, expand present ones, and secure additional outside funds. The budget request points out the need for employing an assistant to help the dean before completion by 1969 of a new building on the campus that will make the program expansion possible. It is also pointed out that more than 40 per cent of the population of the state is within daily commuting distance of the St. Louis campus.

Higher Education Big Business in Missouri

COLUMBIA -- Faced with problems of developing two new urban campuses while still trying to catch up on two others, higher education has become a big business for the State of Missouri.

But state taxpayers still get a "bargain" insofar as appropriation requests of the University of Missouri are concerned. For every $1 of tax funds received from the General Assembly, the University obtains nearly another $1 through its earnings, gifts and grants, student fees, sales and service and federal funds.

That will enable the University to meet an operations budget totaling $151.3 million with only $78.6 million in state appropriations.

Similarly, if the General Assembly provided $62.5 million requested for capital items, the University expects to obtain another $25.8 million from federal and other sources to undertake a badly needed $88.3 million worth of buildings and capital expenditures on the four campuses.

Many of the funds from sources other than state appropriations are restricted by the donor, such as federal grants for specific research activities; gifts for loan funds; and earnings from University business operations such as residence halls which must be used for retirement of bonded indebtedness that made construction of residence halls possible.

Some 26 percent of the University income is restricted. But another 22 percent which comes from sources such as student fees, sales and service, gifts made for general rather than specific purposes, and some federal funds, may be used as needed.

University officials for years have generated gifts from alumni, friends, foundations and industry and such totals have been growing annually. Last year these "gifts and grants" totaled $17 million. Private support, particularly the alumni annual giving fund, which has tripled in the last five years, is increasing.

Graduates have been made aware that more and more private funds will be needed to enable the University to attain greater excellence and to reach goals that would be impossible through use of legislative funds alone.

University income estimates for the year, in addition to the $78.6 million asked of the General Assembly, include $32.7 million from student fees, sales and services, federal appropriations and other sources that go into the operating budget, as well as $23.5 million from federal, foundation, industry, gifts and grants and contracts for restricted purposes, and $16.4 million from auxiliary enterprises and other restricted income.

The figures have climbed higher, but the percentages have varied little through the last few years. State appropriations have provided 48 to 52 per cent of the total operating income.

University needs have grown since the four-campus University came into existence in 1963. By legislative direction the University absorbed the financially-pressed private University of Kansas City and established a brand new campus in St. Louis. Both campuses lack facilities to meet student demands in urban areas where more than half the college - age youths reside. Meanwhile, the University has been striving to catch up with unfilled demands on the older campuses in Columbia and Rolla.

Sewer and Water Link Awarded

DEXTER -- The McMullin Excavating Company of Dexter, of which Eddie McMullin is owner, was the low bidder on the sewer and water extension to the Dexter memorial hospital site at the bid opening Wednesday and was awarded the contract for the work by the city council.

McMullin's bid was $42,918.76 -- lower than any of five bids received.

The contract calls for the laying of a 10-inch water line and an eight-inch sewer line to the hospital site -- an important step in the construction of the hospital. McMullin is expected to start work immediately since both lines are needed as soon as possible.

Plans for the work were prepared by C. R. Trotter and Associates, engineering firm, which will supervice construction.

Other bids received included: Central Construction Company, Sikeston -- $60,279.61; Bennett and Smith, Fredericktown - $54,533.61; A. L. Schaller, Monett -- $52,816.65; Curtis Beach, Tipton -- $50,376.50; and Jackson Excavating Company, Jackson -- $58,568.48.

The formal bid-opening took place at a city council meeting presided over by Mayor Willis Conner.

Work can start immediately, Mayor Conner said.

Tax Bills Mailed Out

CHARLESTON -- County Collector Carl "Shorty" Wyatt's staff mailed out approximately 10,000 tax bills Tuesday.

State and county taxes are up two cents on the $100 assessed valuation to $1.18, and in addition, the rate in Charleston R-1 school district is up 29 cents, making a total in this district 31 cents higher than last year.

The rate in East Prairie and the R-2 district is up only two cents.

That portion of the R-4 (Diehlstadt) district in Mississippi County shows a rate increase which totals 18 cents.

The tax rate per $100 assessed valuation in each of the school districts follows:

Charleston R-1	$4.68
East Prairie R-2	$4.58
Diehlstadt R-4	$4.34

The total valuation on the books this year is $34,218,516 -- an increase of $588,235 over last year.

Higher Education Big Business in Missouri

COLUMBIA -- Faced with problems of developing two new urban campuses while still trying to catch up on two others, higher education has become a big business for the State of Missouri.

But state taxpayers still get a "bargain" insofar as appropriation requests of the University of Missouri are concerned. For every $1 of tax funds received from the General Assembly, the University obtains nearly another $1 through its earnings, gifts and grants, student fees, sales and service and federal funds.

That will enable the University to meet an operations budget totaling $151.3 million with only $78.6 million in state appropriations.

Similarly, if the General Assembly provided $62.5 million requested for capital items, the University expects to obtain another $25.8 million from federal and other sources to undertake a badly needed $88.3 million worth of buildings and capital expenditures on the four campuses.

Many of the funds from sources other than state appropriations are restricted by the donor, such as federal grants for specific research activities; gifts for loan funds; and earnings from University business operations such as residence halls which must be used for retirement of bonded indebtedness that made construction of residence halls possible.

Some 26 percent of the University income is restricted. But another 22 percent which comes from sources such as student fees, sales and service, gifts made for general rather than specific purposes, and some federal funds, may be used as needed.

University officials for years have generated gifts from alumni, friends, foundations and industry and such totals have been growing annually. Last year these "gifts and grants" totaled $17 million. Private support, particularly the alumni annual giving fund, which has tripled in the last five years, is increasing.

Graduates have been made aware that more and more private funds will be needed to enable the University to attain greater excellence and to reach goals that would be impossible through use of legislative funds alone.

University income estimates for the year, in addition to the $78.6 million asked of the General Assembly, include $32.7 million from student fees, sales and services, federal appropriations and other sources that go into the operating budget, as well as $23.5 million from federal, foundation, industry, gifts and grants and contracts for restricted purposes, and $16.4 million from auxiliary enterprises and other restricted income.

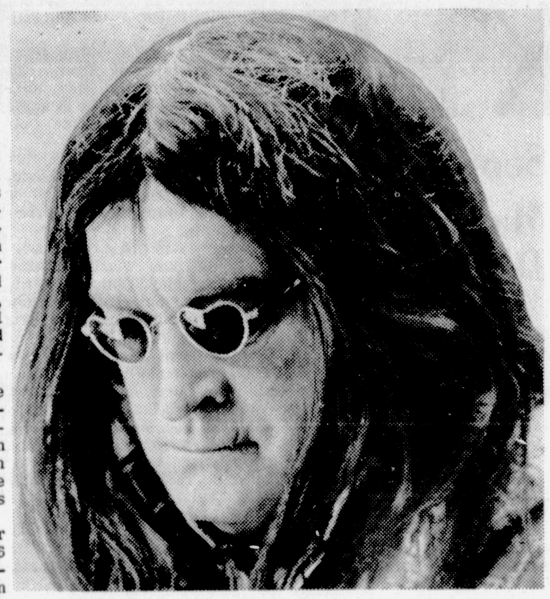

The figures have climbed higher, but the percentages have varied little through the last few years. State appropriations have provided 48 to 52 per cent of the total operating income.

University needs have grown since the four-campus University came into existence in 1963. By legislative direction the University absorbed the financially-pressed private University of Kansas City and established a brand new campus in St. Louis. Both campuses lack facilities to meet student demands in urban areas where more than half the college - age youths reside. Meanwhile, the University has been striving to catch up with unfilled demands on the older campuses in Columbia and Rolla.

Fall's Indian Summer Is Herald Of Coming Winter

INDIAN SUMMER, the time of the harvest moon, clear crisp air, and bewitching dusks, is upon us in all its glory.

With no definite beginning or end, Indian summer is that time when warm breezes, reminiscent of summer blow, and trees, are turned overnight into flames of color seemingly frozen for our eyes to behold.

Though the mild period is short in duration, it is a blessed bit of relief before the onslaught of harsh winter.

The American Indians loved this beautiful period. They looked on it as a gift of the gods.

Name for this time was probably derived from these same Indian tribes. Though the origin is clouded by many years, one story says that early settlers named the period.

The story goes that the Indians promised the settlers that just such a mild period would come.

Another but less romantic story says that the period of warm weather gave the Indians another chance to raid the white man before the winter snows came. Settlers came to know and to watch for this period for their own protection.

To us in modern times, Indian summer means Halloween, hay rides, and football. Its arrival means the appearance of heavier clothing and the looking ahead to the coming holiday season.

We should all realize that Indian summer is nature's good-bye kiss to the summer season, and we should enjoy this season.

UNICEF Sends Donations To Help Underpriviledged

UNICEF! Is that word familiar?

United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund -- that is the meaning of the word.

When the United Nations established UNICEF in 1946, the first and foremost purpose of the organization was to provide the needy childrer of the world with milk.

This organization has grown, as have the efforts of those who are so dedicated to it. From an unknown organization, UNICEF has become world famous and can boast contributions from people of every nationality.

Children in more than 100 countries around the world are growing up a little healthier, a little happier because of UNICEF.

When school children in the United States help by knocking on doors on Halloween night and collecting donations for UNICEF, they are helping these children get the food, medicines and schooling they need so badly.

What is amazing is how far a little help to UNICEF goes. Just one UNICEF nickel gives enough penicillin to cure two children of yaws, or 30 vitamin tablets, or vaccine to protect four children from TB.

It is a good feeling to know that a child who has eaten less in his lifetime than you have eaten in one year will enjoy a glass of milk or a bowl of rice because you gave to UNICEF.

Halloween night when some child or adult knocks on your door, welcome him, give generously. You drink milk every day -- you eat every day.

It is doubtful that you will have to miss a meal to give $1 or two, but even if it is, even if you miss one meal, you will have given many meals to many hungry children in all parts of the world.

Give to UNICEF! Your next meal will taste better than it has for a long time.

Homecoming Queen Named Tonight

SENIORS DIANNE ALSUP, JANIE VANDIVORT and MARY JANE COPE strive to complete homecoming decorations.

SENIOR LINDA SMITTEN is following in the footsteps of her mother, professional harpist Mimi Allen.

Harpist Linda Smitten Is Typical Enthusiastic Sr.

Student of the Week is spotlighted by Linda Smitten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Smitten. Linda resides at 915 Moore Avenue with her parents and her 14-year-old brother Tommy.

Following in her mother's footsteps, Linda plays the harp and is scheduled to be the background music in the "Littlest Angel", a play to be produced by the Little Theatre, and she will also present a concert for the Missouri Arts Council.

This summer was filled with fun and excitement for Linda, Summer school in England with side trips to Paris and Edinburgh, provided much frolic and good times. Linda is looking forward to the reunion of the students in this summer school to be held in Raleigh, North Carolina, over Christmas vacation.

Showing her interest in outside activities, Linda is a member of both the Drama Club and Red Peppers.

Next fall Linda plans to enter Stephen's College and major in journalism.

When asked about her feelings of this school year Linda replied, "It's great being a senior, but I can hardly wait for college."

Two Perform For Meeting Of Teachers

David Bird and Barbara Armour entertained the Sikeston Community Teachers Association with a group of folk songs last Wednesday afternoon.

"Rider" and "Take Her Out of Pity" were the selections played by the duet.

Barbara served as vocalist for the group, while David accompanied her on a 12-string guitar and also vocalized.

David and Barbara, known as the "Ramblers," have performed for local civic clubs and other functions. They have been together for a short while.

Tim Lambert Is October FBLA Students' Pick

Future Business Leaders of America selected Tim Lambert as "Student of the Month" for October.

Working on the FBLA float, which tied for second place in the cotton carnival parade, in the student store, and on the student council provides Tim little leisure time to work on his pilot's license.

Time is what you would call an "avid flying enthusiast." He plans to make the Air Force his career and is now working on obtaining his pilot's license. The ROTC training will provide Tim with a second lieutenant commission in the Air Force.

Before entering into ROTC training, Tim hopes to go to SEMO State College and major in business administration.

Time lives at 1721 Oklahoma with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Lambert and his little brother, DeWitt.

Sherman Names Four Additional Liaison Members

Students selected this past week to serve on the liaison committee are seniors Kathy Thomas and Gloria Wiggins; junior Coyita Dockins; sophomores James Robinson and Sheila Clinton.

Other students serving with the group are student body president Gary Wiss, senior class president King Sidwell, junior class president Bob Lambert and sophomore president Tom McCanless.

Function of this new committee will be to represent the student body of Sikeston high school in the course of the biweekly meetings scheduled for the remainder of the year.

Recreation, activities and curriculum changes; the annual student orientation for new students; laying down a code of ethics, and setting rules for student dress.

Problems to be faced by this new group are the problems rising from the addition of the freshman class to the Sikeston high school complex.

This committee will meet at least once every two weeks with Mr. Sherman and/or vice-principal Troy Stephenson and the counselors.

These four new student members were chosen by principal Sherman with the assistance of the counselors and Gary Wiss.

The hatred we bear our enemies injuries their happiness less than our own.

Sikeston Has Two Choirs This Year

Concert choirs, directed by Gordon Beaver, is not just one large choir, but two smaller groups this year.

Concert choir VI meets during the sixth hour, and concert choir VII meets during seventh hour.

Lynne Tenkhoff and Jan Sargeant accompany the sixth hour choir, and Carolyn Clinton accompanies the choir during the seventh hour.

Each choir has its own music, along with some for both groups to sing together.

Annual concerts are given by the choirs at Christmas, Palm Sunday, and at the Spring Music Review. They also perform for various school and civic functions during the year.

Modern chorale is a branch of concert choir, and it consists of selected members from both choirs. Approximately 24 members compose the modern chorale.

Modern chorale presents its individual concert with the community choir.

During the annual concerts, both choirs will sing together as one unit; each choir will sing selected numbers; and the modern chorale will also sing special numbers.

Different ensembles from modern chorale perform in the annual contest at SEMO State College in the spring.

The first performance of the concert choirs will be during the Thanksgiving assembly.

SHS Band To Perform At Halftime

Sikeston marching Bulldogs will perform at halftime of the Sikeston-Jackson game tonight.

Band members will enter the field in a scatter entrance and march to the 30 and 40-yard lines where they will play the fanfare to "Flashing Brass".

Band members in the center of the field form a square while the rest of the members do pinwheels in squads of four and eight.

Band will march to five horizontal lines and play "Tea for Two" for the twirlers to perform.

After another pinwheel, the band will move to its original position and play "The 1812 Overture," directed by Keith Collins.

Step-two drills will then be performed by the band while playing "Flashing Brass."

Marching Bulldogs will leave the field in four company fronts playing "Flashing Brass' and "Red and Black."

SENIORS CAROLYN CLINTON and LYNNE TENKHOFF and sophomore JAN SARGEANT accompany the concert choirs, directed by Gordon Beaver.

Senior Girls Make School Decorations

Football homecoming queen will be crowned tonight immediately after the football game in the cafeteria.

Football players selected the queen one evening this past week, but her identity will remain a secret until tonight's dance.

Queen and her two attendants will be escorted to the homecoming dance by three of the football players.

Preceding the Sikeston-Jackson game, the candidates will be driven around the track in convertibles before assuming seats of honor on the 50-yard line.

Elaborate decorations exemplify spirited feelings of the student body today as gigantic football players tower in the quadrangle.

Senior Mary Jane Cope headed the pep committee to make the impressive school decorations. She was assisted by Pam Marsh and Jane Anne Baker, co-chairmen.

A 10-foot high football rises in the quadrangle. Senior football players are also realistically characterized.

Bulldogs and football players printed with the names of the team members can be seen on every available space around the campus. Over 1,000 dog heads snarl on the doors, windows and walls of the "Home of the Bulldogs."

Football players will be honored by the Red Peppers this afternoon in a special meeting. Cheers, poems and songs will be dedicated to the Bulldogs.

Sophomores in homerooms 10-F and 10-B, sponsored by Mrs. Catherine Matthews and Mrs. Cole Lannum, arranged the publicity. Miss Lucile Mount's and John Reuber's homerooms, 10-D, and 10-J, were in charge of the crowning ceremony, the queen's flowers and crown. Bernard Kincy's homeroom 10-A and W. W. Wilkson's 10-I, will clean up after the dance.

Red Pepper Tea Slated Monday For Induction

Annual Red Pepper tea, inducting 130 new members into the Sikeston high school pep organization, is slated for Monday evening at 7 o'clock in the cafetorium.

After the formal greeting by cayenne Diane Taylor, the constitution of the organization will be read and discussed, thereby giving the new members the rules and regulations of the club.

Singing of "The Red and the Black" is traditional and sums up the induction.

After distributing the red and black felt peppers to the new members, demerit chairman Gena Nunnelee will award the stars to the junior and senior girls.

"New members have been waiting a long time for this thrill, and we will be very happy when we are no longer considered greenies," said sophomore Sandy Spear.

Sikeston High Will Sponsor College Night

Juniors, senior and parents are invited to attend college night in Sikeston high school Wednesday, Nov. 15.

This program is designed to acquaint students bound for college with various schools of learning.

Representatives from more than 30 colleges will be present. These include Arkansas State College, Baptist Memorial Hospital School of Nursing.

Central Methodist, Christian, Culver - Stockton, Draughon's Business College, Drury, Hannibal-LaGrange, Lambuth, Lincoln University.

Memphis State University, Methodist Hospital School of Nursing, Missouri Valley, Murray State, School of the Ozarks, Southeast Missouri State College.

Southwest Baptist College, Union University, Westminster, William Jewell, University of Missouri, University of Missouri at Rolla.

United States Coast Guard Academy, William Woods, Three Rivers Junior College, Siena, United Electronics, Metropolitan College of Business and Linn Technical College.

College night will be divided into four 20-minute sessions consisting of question - and - answer periods by the students and parents, and information concerning the schools from the representatives.

Students from area high schools have been invited to attend this event.

Counselor Mrs. Helen Reuber organized the program.

Any color as long as it's black.

That's how they did it with the fabulous Model T.

It was a unique car, it was in a price range all its own, and if you wanted one, that was your choice of color. And a lot of people wanted one.

Then, all of a sudden people wanted more of a choice. They didn't make speeches or write their Congressmen. They didn't even stop to think about it. They just went out and bought another color.

And the automotive industry was paying attention. Which is why, today, if you care to, you can just about design your own car—what with all the optional choices of engine, transmission, suspension, wheels, bodies. That's the way the system works.

The one thing that hasn't changed from the good old days to the good new days is this: You pays your money and you takes your choice."

Fall's Indian Summer Is Herald Of Coming Winter

INDIAN SUMMER, the time of the harvest moon, clear crisp air, and bewitching dusks, is upon us in all its glory.

With no definite beginning or end, Indian summer is that time when warm breezes, reminiscent of summer blow, and trees, are turned overnight into flames of color seemingly frozen for our eyes to behold.

Though the mild period is short in duration, it is a blessed bit of relief before the onslaught of harsh winter.

The American Indians loved this beautiful period. They looked on it as a gift of the gods.

Name for this time was probably derived from these same Indian tribes. Though the origin is clouded by many years, one story says that early settlers named the period.

The story goes that the Indians promised the settlers that just such a mild period would come.

Another but less romantic story says that the period of warm weather gave the Indians another chance to raid the white man before the winter snows came. Settlers came to know and to watch for this period for their own protection.

To us in modern times, Indian summer means Halloween, hay rides, and football. Its arrival means the appearance of heavier clothing and the looking ahead to the coming holiday season.

We should all realize that Indian summer is nature's good-bye kiss to the summer season, and we should enjoy this season.

UNICEF Sends Donations To Help Underpriviledged

UNICEF! Is that word familiar?

United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund -- that is the meaning of the word.

When the United Nations established UNICEF in 1946, the first and foremost purpose of the organization was to provide the needy childrer of the world with milk.

This organization has grown, as have the efforts of those who are so dedicated to it. From an unknown organization, UNICEF has become world famous and can boast contributions from people of every nationality.

Children in more than 100 countries around the world are growing up a little healthier, a little happier because of UNICEF.

When school children in the United States help by knocking on doors on Halloween night and collecting donations for UNICEF, they are helping these children get the food, medicines and schooling they need so badly.

What is amazing is how far a little help to UNICEF goes. Just one UNICEF nickel gives enough penicillin to cure two children of yaws, or 30 vitamin tablets, or vaccine to protect four children from TB.

It is a good feeling to know that a child who has eaten less in his lifetime than you have eaten in one year will enjoy a glass of milk or a bowl of rice because you gave to UNICEF.

Halloween night when some child or adult knocks on your door, welcome him, give generously. You drink milk every day -- you eat every day.

It is doubtful that you will have to miss a meal to give $1 or two, but even if it is, even if you miss one meal, you will have given many meals to many hungry children in all parts of the world.

Give to UNICEF! Your next meal will taste better than it has for a long time.

Homecoming Queen Named Tonight

SENIORS DIANNE ALSUP, JANIE VANDIVORT and MARY JANE COPE strive to complete homecoming decorations.

SENIOR LINDA SMITTEN is following in the footsteps of her mother, professional harpist Mimi Allen.

Harpist Linda Smitten Is Typical Enthusiastic Sr.

Student of the Week is spotlighted by Linda Smitten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Smitten. Linda resides at 915 Moore Avenue with her parents and her 14-year-old brother Tommy.

Following in her mother's footsteps, Linda plays the harp and is scheduled to be the background music in the "Littlest Angel", a play to be produced by the Little Theatre, and she will also present a concert for the Missouri Arts Council.

This summer was filled with fun and excitement for Linda, Summer school in England with side trips to Paris and Edinburgh, provided much frolic and good times. Linda is looking forward to the reunion of the students in this summer school to be held in Raleigh, North Carolina, over Christmas vacation.

Showing her interest in outside activities, Linda is a member of both the Drama Club and Red Peppers.

Next fall Linda plans to enter Stephen's College and major in journalism.

When asked about her feelings of this school year Linda replied, "It's great being a senior, but I can hardly wait for college."

Two Perform For Meeting Of Teachers

David Bird and Barbara Armour entertained the Sikeston Community Teachers Association with a group of folk songs last Wednesday afternoon.

"Rider" and "Take Her Out of Pity" were the selections played by the duet.

Barbara served as vocalist for the group, while David accompanied her on a 12-string guitar and also vocalized.

David and Barbara, known as the "Ramblers," have performed for local civic clubs and other functions. They have been together for a short while.

Tim Lambert Is October FBLA Students' Pick

Future Business Leaders of America selected Tim Lambert as "Student of the Month" for October.

Working on the FBLA float, which tied for second place in the cotton carnival parade, in the student store, and on the student council provides Tim little leisure time to work on his pilot's license.

Time is what you would call an "avid flying enthusiast." He plans to make the Air Force his career and is now working on obtaining his pilot's license. The ROTC training will provide Tim with a second lieutenant commission in the Air Force.

Before entering into ROTC training, Tim hopes to go to SEMO State College and major in business administration.

Time lives at 1721 Oklahoma with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Lambert and his little brother, DeWitt.

Sherman Names Four Additional Liaison Members

Students selected this past week to serve on the liaison committee are seniors Kathy Thomas and Gloria Wiggins; junior Coyita Dockins; sophomores James Robinson and Sheila Clinton.

Other students serving with the group are student body president Gary Wiss, senior class president King Sidwell, junior class president Bob Lambert and sophomore president Tom McCanless.

Function of this new committee will be to represent the student body of Sikeston high school in the course of the biweekly meetings scheduled for the remainder of the year.

Recreation, activities and curriculum changes; the annual student orientation for new students; laying down a code of ethics, and setting rules for student dress.

Problems to be faced by this new group are the problems rising from the addition of the freshman class to the Sikeston high school complex.

This committee will meet at least once every two weeks with Mr. Sherman and/or vice-principal Troy Stephenson and the counselors.

These four new student members were chosen by principal Sherman with the assistance of the counselors and Gary Wiss.

The hatred we bear our enemies injuries their happiness less than our own.

Sikeston Has Two Choirs This Year

Concert choirs, directed by Gordon Beaver, is not just one large choir, but two smaller groups this year.

Concert choir VI meets during the sixth hour, and concert choir VII meets during seventh hour.

Lynne Tenkhoff and Jan Sargeant accompany the sixth hour choir, and Carolyn Clinton accompanies the choir during the seventh hour.

Each choir has its own music, along with some for both groups to sing together.

Annual concerts are given by the choirs at Christmas, Palm Sunday, and at the Spring Music Review. They also perform for various school and civic functions during the year.

Modern chorale is a branch of concert choir, and it consists of selected members from both choirs. Approximately 24 members compose the modern chorale.

Modern chorale presents its individual concert with the community choir.

During the annual concerts, both choirs will sing together as one unit; each choir will sing selected numbers; and the modern chorale will also sing special numbers.

Different ensembles from modern chorale perform in the annual contest at SEMO State College in the spring.

The first performance of the concert choirs will be during the Thanksgiving assembly.

SHS Band To Perform At Halftime

Sikeston marching Bulldogs will perform at halftime of the Sikeston-Jackson game tonight.

Band members will enter the field in a scatter entrance and march to the 30 and 40-yard lines where they will play the fanfare to "Flashing Brass".

Band members in the center of the field form a square while the rest of the members do pinwheels in squads of four and eight.

Band will march to five horizontal lines and play "Tea for Two" for the twirlers to perform.

After another pinwheel, the band will move to its original position and play "The 1812 Overture," directed by Keith Collins.

Step-two drills will then be performed by the band while playing "Flashing Brass."

Marching Bulldogs will leave the field in four company fronts playing "Flashing Brass" and "Red and Black."

Senior Girls Make School Decorations

Football homecoming queen will be crowned tonight immediately after the football game in the cafeteria.

Football players selected the queen one evening this past week, but her identity will remain a secret until tonight's dance.

Queen and her two attendants will be escorted to the homecoming dance by three of the football players.

Preceding the Sikeston-Jackson game, the candidates will be driven around the track in convertibles before assuming seats of honor on the 50-yard line.

Elaborate decorations exemplify spirited feelings of the student body today as gigantic football players tower in the quadrangle.

Senior Mary Jane Cope headed the pep committee to make the impressive school decorations. She was assisted by Pam Marsh and Jane Anne Baker, co-chairmen.

A 10-foot high football rises in the quadrangle. Senior football players are also realistically characterized.

Bulldogs and football players printed with the names of the team members can be seen on every available space around the campus. Over 1,000 dog heads snarl on the doors, windows and walls of the "Home of the Bulldogs."

Football players will be honored by the Red Peppers this afternoon in a special meeting. Cheers, poems and songs will be dedicated to the Bulldogs.

Sophomores in homerooms 10-F and 10-B, sponsored by Mrs. Catherine Matthews and Mrs. Cole Lannum, arranged the publicity. Miss Lucile Mount's and John Reuber's homerooms, 10-D, and 10-J, were in charge of the crowning ceremony, the queen's flowers and crown. Bernard Kincy's homeroom 10-A and W. W. Wilkson's 10-I, will clean up after the dance.

Red Pepper Tea Slated Monday For Induction

Annual Red Pepper tea, inducting 130 new members into the Sikeston high school pep organization, is slated for Monday evening at 7 o'clock in the cafetorium.

After the formal greeting by cayenne Diane Taylor, the constitution of the organization will be read and discussed, thereby giving the new members the rules and regulations of the club.

Singing of "The Red and the Black" is traditional and sums up the induction.

After distributing the red and black felt peppers to the new members, demerit chairman Gena Nunnelee will award the stars to the junior and senior girls.

"New members have been waiting a long time for this thrill, and we will be very happy when we are no longer considered greenies," said sophomore Sandy Spear.

Sikeston High Will Sponsor College Night

Juniors, senior and parents are invited to attend college night in Sikeston high school Wednesday, Nov. 15.

This program is designed to acquaint students bound for college with various schools of learning.

Representatives from more than 30 colleges will be present. These include Arkansas State College, Baptist Memorial Hospital School of Nursing.

Central Methodist, Christian, Culver - Stockton, Draughon's Business College, Drury, Hannibal-LaGrange, Lambuth, Lincoln University.

Memphis State University, Methodist Hospital School of Nursing, Missouri Valley, Murray State, School of the Ozarks, Southeast Missouri State College.

Southwest Baptist College, Union University, Westminster, William Jewell, University of Missouri, University of Missouri at Rolla.

United States Coast Guard Academy, William Woods, Three Rivers Junior College, Siena, United Electronics, Metropolitan College of Business and Linn Technical College.

College night will be divided into four 20-minute sessions consisting of question - and - answer periods by the students and parents, and information concerning the schools from the representatives.

Students from area high schools have been invited to attend this event.

Counselor Mrs. Helen Reuber organized the program.

SENIORS CAROLYN CLINTON and LYNNE TENKHOFF and sophomore JAN SARGEANT accompany the concert choirs, directed by Gordon Beaver.

Water Districts Must Collect Sales Tax

JEFFERSON CITY -- Attorney General Norman H. Anderson ruled that a public water district is obligated to collect sales taxes from domestic, commercial or industrial consumers to whom it sells water and must remit the revenue to the department of revenue.

The opinion was issued to Prosecuting Attorney Paul McGhee of Stoddard County, Anderson said that recent changes in the law do not relieve a political subdivision from the duty of collecting and paying the tax.

"It is clear that the provisions of Chapter 144, RSMo as amended, are still applicable to sales by a public water supply district. The tax still is imposed upon all 'persons' engaged in selling water to domestic, commercial or industrial consumers. No change was made in this section which includes political subdivisions within the definition of the word 'persons.' Although the tax is now imposed upon the seller based upon his gross recepts, the seller still is required to collect and the buyer to pay the tax," Anderson explained. "Nor do we think the obvious legislative intent to include political subdivisions within the requirements of Chapter 144 is frustrated by Article III, Section 39, of the Missouri Constitution, which provdes that the 'General Assembly shall not have power. . . to impose a use or sales tax upon the use, purchase or acquisition of property paid for out of the funds of any county or political subdivision."

Anderson said that there is no "use purchase or acquisition of property" by the water supply district in this case and since the incidence of the tax falls upon the consumer, the taxes are not "paid for out of the funds of any political subdivision."

Ann Landers

Sister's Sex Talk Applauded

Dear Ann Landers: I am so disguested with my mother I don't know what to do. I am a 16-year-old girl who is beginning to understand why there is so much trouble in the world over sex. It's because of mothers who perpetuate lies and ignorance. Here is what happened:

Yesterday my eight-year-old brother came home and repeated some things a neighbor boy had told him. I was shocked at the words he used and the way he expressed himself. I told my little brother that the neighbor boy had it all wrong, that sex was not nasty and dirty, that it was part of God's plan for bringing babies into the world.

My brother said he did not believe God would approve of anything like that and then he went straight to my mother and asked her. Ann, I almost fell over dead when my mother said to him, "You are right, dear. God sends babies from heaven and the mothers pick them up at the hospital.'

My mother then took me aside and raked me over the coals for telling an eight-year-old kid about sex. I was speechless. Here I had tried to make my little brother understand that sex was a normal, natural thing, a wonderful gift from God and my mother made a liar out of me.

Please tell all mothers that they owe it to their children to give them a wholesome slant on sex, honest answers and a healthy respect for married love as an important part of parenthood. Warn them that if they don't do it soon enough, some neighbor kid (whose parents have also abdicated their responsibility) will beat them to it. -- SAD SISTER

Dear Sister: You have the right idea and I applaude you. You are lucky someone instructed you in the proper way because I'm sure your mother didn't.

Don't be too hard on her, however. Your mother's ignorance is the miserable legacy which she inherited from HER mother--who was also ignorant.

Maintain a friendly and open relationship with your little brother and, without defying your mother's authority, keep trying to set him straight.

Dear Ann Landers: Our son is leaving for Vietnam in a few days. He was home over the weekend and I gave him a lovely farewell party. I invited all the relatives on both sides. The guests umbered 40 in all.

Everyone knew the purpose of the party, yet not a single person bought him a gift or gave him a check.

I didn't give the party to collect gifts or money, Ann, but I was deeply hurt at their thoughtlessness. What do you think about such relatives? -- DUMBFOUNDED

If You Were the Judge

Alcoholic Must Abide By Contract He Signed

By Jack Strauss, LL.D.

Leon and Meyer formed a partnership and soon began to coin money like they were in competition with the government. But then problems developed which Meyer tried to resolve with a corkscrew. After taking several drinks, however, the drinks began to take drinks and then the drinks took poor old Meyer. He bacame an alcoholic. The result? Leon wanted him out of the business.

Consequently, he had Meyer sign a paper giving up all interests in their partnership and, after paying him a bundle of money, Leon sent him on his way.

Several months later, Meyer reappeared -- in court. Reflecting upon his withdrawal from the partnership, he demanded that the paper Leon had had him sign be declared void.

"I didn't know what I was doing," alcoholic Meyer told the judge, "I was sober when I signed it."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you void the paper signed by a sober alcoholic?

This is how the Judge ruled: No! The judge held that a person may not avoid a contract on the grounds that he's an alcoholic, if, at the time he signed it, he was sober and in possession of his faculties.

Water Districts Must Collect Sales Tax

JEFFERSON CITY -- Attorney General Norman H. Anderson ruled that a public water district is obligated to collect sales taxes from domestic, commercial or industrial consumers to whom it sells water and must remit the revenue to the department of revenue.

The opinion was issued to Prosecuting Attorney Paul McGhee of Stoddard County, Anderson said that recent changes in the law do not relieve a political subdivision from the duty of collecting and paying the tax.

"It is clear that the provisions of Chapter 144, RSMo as amended, are still applicable to sales by a public water supply district. The tax still is imposed upon all 'persons' engaged in selling water to domestic, commercial or industrial consumers. No change was made in this section which includes political subdivisions within the definition of the word 'persons.' Although the tax is now imposed upon the seller based upon his gross recepts, the seller still is required to collect and the buyer to pay the tax," Anderson explained. "Nor do we think the obvious legislative intent to include political subdivisions within the requirements of Chapter 144 is frustrated by Article III, Section 39, of the Missouri Constitution, which provdes that the 'General Assembly shall not have power. . . to impose a use or sales tax upon the use, purchase or acquisition of property paid for out of the funds of any county or political subdivision."

Anderson said that there is no "use purchase or acquisition of property" by the water supply district in this case and since the incidence of the tax falls upon the consumer, the taxes are not "paid for out of the funds of any political subdivision."

Ann Landers

Sister's Sex Talk Applauded

Dear Ann Landers: I am so disguested with my mother I don't know what to do. I am a 16-year-old girl who is beginning to understand why there is so much trouble in the world over sex. It's because of mothers who perpetuate lies and ignorance. Here is what happened:

Yesterday my eight-year-old brother came home and repeated some things a neighbor boy had told him. I was shocked at the words he used and the way he expressed himself. I told my little brother that the neighbor boy had it all wrong, that sex was not nasty and dirty, that it was part of God's plan for bringing babies into the world.

My brother said he did not believe God would approve of anything like that and then he went straight to my mother and asked her. Ann, I almost fell over dead when my mother said to him, "You are right, dear. God sends babies from heaven and the mothers pick them up at the hospital.'

My mother then took me aside and raked me over the coals for telling an eight-year-old kid about sex. I was speechless. Here I had tried to make my little brother understand that sex was a normal, natural thing, a wonderful gift from God and my mother made a liar out of me.

Please tell all mothers that they owe it to their children to give them a wholesome slant on sex, honest answers and a healthy respect for married love as an important part of parenthood. Warn them that if they don't do it soon enough, some neighbor kid (whose parents have also abdicated their responsibility) will beat them to it. -- SAD SISTER

Dear Sister: You have the right idea and I applaude you. You are lucky someone instructed you in the proper way because I'm sure your mother didn't.

Don't be too hard on her, however. Your mother's ignorance is the miserable legacy which she inherited from HER mother--who was also ignorant.

Maintain a friendly and open relationship with your little brother and, without defying your mother's authority, keep trying to set him straight.

Dear Ann Landers: Our son is leaving for Vietnam in a few days. He was home over the weekend and I gave him a lovely farewell party. I invited all the relatives on both sides. The guests umbered 40 in all.

Everyone knew the purpose of the party, yet not a single person bought him a gift or gave him a check.

I didn't give the party to collect gifts or money, Ann, but I was deeply hurt at their thoughtlessness. What do you think about such relatives? -- DUMBFOUNDED

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, Oct. 27, the 300th day of 1967. There are 65 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1806, Napoleon Bonaparte's army occupied Berlin.

On this date—

In 1858, the 26th U.S. president, Theodore Roosevelt, was born in New York City.

In 1912, the siege of Adrianople began during the Balkan War.

In 1920, the League of Nations transferred its headquarters from London to Geneva.

In 1940, the New York World's Fair closed.

In 1942, the U.S. Office of Economic Stabilization set a ceiling on salaries during World War II.

In 1945, President Harry S. Truman said in a speech the United States would use its military strength solely to preserve the peace.

Ten years ago: a national election in Turkey continued Premier Adnan Menderes in power.

Five years ago: Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev offered to withdraw offensive weapons from Cuba if the United States removed similar weapons from Turkey.

One year ago: The U.N. General Assembly proclaimed the termination of South Africa's mandate over South-West Africa.

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, Oct. 27, the 300th day of 1967. There are 65 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1806, Napoleon Bonaparte's army occupied Berlin.

On this date—

In 1858, the 26th U.S. president, Theodore Roosevelt, was born in New York City.

In 1912, the siege of Adrianople began during the Balkan War.

In 1920, the League of Nations transferred its headquarters from London to Geneva.

In 1940, the New York World's Fair closed.

In 1942, the U.S. Office of Economic Stabilization set a ceiling on salaries during World War II.

In 1945, President Harry S. Truman said in a speech the United States would use its military strength solely to preserve the peace.

Ten years ago: a national election in Turkey continued Premier Adnan Menderes in power.

Five years ago: Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev offered to withdraw offensive weapons from Cuba if the United States removed similar weapons from Turkey.

One year ago: The U.N. General Assembly proclaimed the termination of South Africa's mandate over South-West Africa.

The New Zealand moa, a large bird that looked something like an ostrich, became extinct about the middle of the 1600s.

Service Center Board Chosen

MORLEY -- There was a meeting in the neighborhood service center Tuesday night to elect an advisory board for the Head Start program to be started in the center no later than Nov. 15.

The meeting was opened by the coordinator, Mrs. Bill Anderson, who introduced the speaker, Bob Porter, of the Head Start program in Portageville. Mr. Porter explained the Head Start program to the group and said that an advisory board should be elected, to be made up of four parents and four business people.

Those elected to serve were president, Eddie Walton; vice president, Mrs. Ray Emerson; secretary, Mrs. Bob Crotts, and treasurer, Hubert Rowe. The business people were Mrs. Marian Farrenburg, Mrs. Russell Hatfield, Elbert Clark and Eddie Hicks.

An area wide parent representative, Mrs. Charles Freed, who will attend meetings in Portageville, was elected with Mrs. Emerson as alternate.

Mrs. Richard Powell, executive secretary of the Head Start program, was also present for the meeting. Mrs. Powell told the group some of the things the children would be doing in Head Start. She stated that a child learns from playing. She also said there would be a dental and health program.

The children will attend the school for 5 1/2 hours each day.

Diaz Ordaz Plugs Trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz of Mexico, a nation which is a major customer of U.S. goods, spoke out in Congress today for greater trade opportunities for Latin America and other developing areas.

He did not refer directly, in a speech to a joint session of the Senate and House, to a wave of protectionist bills now pending in Congress to restrict imports of a variety of products. But Latin American nations, the Scandinavian countries and the European Common Market nations have registered vigorous opposition to such measures with the State Department.

The Mexican president's appearance at the Capitol constituted his major address in this country where he is on a state visit, with his wife, as guests of President and Mrs. Johnson. Johnson also has spoken out against the protectionist measures.

Memorial Fund For Boone and Hubbard

EAST PRAIRIE -- A memoria fund has been established by the East Prairie Lions club for Dale F. Boone, 49, and Jack Hubbard 42, who were killed Oct. 13 in an airplane crash in Bollinger county near Leopold.

The club expects to erect a fence around the Lions club park in the city and the two men had been among those members most actively engaged in the program. The club is considering making the entrance a memorial to them

Alvin Trammell Dexter Lumber Dealer, Dies

Moores Donate Site for Use as Boat Access Point

CHARLESTON -- State Rep. David Rolwing announced this week that Handy and Bill Moore, former residents of Charleston now living in Sikeston, have donated an eight-acre site on the Mississippi River for use as an access point and boat-launching area.

The site was presented to the state conservation commission Tuesday in a brief ceremony at the North Main Street home of Joseph H. Moore, for whom the access point will be named.

Rolwing and state conservation commission member Robert DeLaney of Charleston have been working for two years to secure an appropriate location for the facility.

The launching ramp and parking area will be located east of Brewer's Lake between the levee and the river. The site is called Pritchard Landing on some maps, and is about six miles due east of Wyatt Junction, accessible by blacktop and gravel roads.

According to DeLaney, the Mississippi County access point will be the only state-maintained facility on the river with the exception of the S. P. Reynolds access point at Caruthersville.

The commissioner said his department's engineers will begin work on surveys to determine the precise location of the facilities to be contracted at the Moore site. When completed, the access point will be the only all-weather boat-launching ramp area on Mississippi county's 85 miles of river bank.

Kennett Woman Presents Grant to Christian College

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)— A gift to finance construction of a student infirmary building was announced today by Dr. W. Merle Hill, president of Christian College here.

The donor is Mrs. E.L. Spence of Kennett, Mo., who attended the two-year college for women from 1900 to 1904. Several of her relatives have been physicians and 70 of her relatives have attended the college.

The amount of the gift was not announced. Dr. Hill said the facility will be a 25-bed infirmary and will replace a frame house on the campus.

More Than 11,000 Take Mail Courses

COLUMBIA -- What may be called "hidden enrollment" at the University of Missouri is the more than 11,000 correspondence students this year from 40 states and 20 foreign countries.

Among them is a Peace Corps volunteer in Bolivia who already has 130 hours of college credit but is taking a course in American Literature, a lady correspondence student from Kansas City who is confined to a wheelchair and enjoys taking courses for no credit (she doesn't like to take exams), and a boy in Vietnam who recently wrote back for a new set of assignments since he lost his in the mud in a fox hole somewhere.

Blind students, convicts, working wives with husbands in school, men and women who married young and now want to finish high school, children whose parents are employed in foreign countries -- these are some of the students of the correspondence study department of the University of Missouri.

The department, established in 1912, is one of the largest among the public regionally accredited institutions in the United States. It offers 41 high schools courses, 181 college courses and is one of the few giving credits on the graduate level.

Students now can take a course preparing them to take the examination leading to the certificate of high school equivalence. This certificate is not a high school diploma but usually is accepted on an equal basis by most colleges and employers.

The enrollment figure of more than 11,000 indicates that people today are interested in their education. The study program, because of its flexibility, offers a chance for self-advancement to those people who cannot maintain residence on a university campus and attend classes regularly or those who did not finish high school.

A correspondence student can continue his education while working full-time, study at his own pace, and take exams at his convenience. The cost is usually less than class room instruction.

A student, by devoting his full time to study, can finish a two-hour course in several weeks. Usually though, several months are used to complete a course. The maximum time allowed to finish a course is two years.

Anyone can enroll in a course at any time providing he meets the specific prerequisites for the course. Institutions have registered correspondence students as young as 11 years old and up to the age of 85. Whole high school classes enroll sometimes when a teacher is not available locally. Some university students are taking a combination of residence and correspondence courses.

People enroll from all levels of training and maturity who are intersted in self-enrichment, broadening their professional or vocational knowledge, or pursuing a hobby.

In a questionnaire recently sent to correspondence students, the majority said the courses were as good or better than regular residence classes.

The quality of the courses might be attributed to more than 100 regular University faculty members who are instructing the correspondence students.

The correspondence study department which is part of the University Wide Extension Division is able to reach many students through the University extension centers located in each county seat. These centers work closely with the department in providing information and supervising examinations.

Schools Given Federal Aid

NEW MADRID -- Starting Monday, students in New Madrid will be afforded an opportunity to do remedial and extended exercises through a federal program. This program will concentrate reading and arithmetic in elementary.

Pupils in grade One through Three will be housed at New Madrid elementary (Main Street); those in grades Four through Eight will attend classes at New Madrid junior high (Scott Street).

Classes will run one hour each day with alternate weeks in arithmetic and reading. Classes will follow the regular public school calendar.

A tutorial service will be afforded high school students in the areas of social studies, language arts (English), science and mathematics. Sessions will be of 30 minutes duration, affording each student an opportunity to get further help in two (2) subjects each day.

A bus will take the students from the high school into town upon completion of the sessions and will then run from the junior high school to the eastern part of town once the session there has ended.

Teachers assigned to the elementary program, instructing in reading and arithmetic respectively, are as follows: First -- Dorothy G. Gardner and Marian Johnson; Second -- Jayne Selby and Gloria Parrish; Third -- Madge Utterback and Harold Selby; Fourth -- Alzada Johnstone and Robert Raspberry; Fifth -- Brenda Curtis and Dorotha Scobey; Sixth -- Beth Henry and Travis Ellis; Seventh -- Peggy Thompson and Willia Brown; Eigith -- Louis Avery and Robert A. Myers.

Counselors are Louis Hunt and Carlan Femmer.

Remedial instructors for grades nine through twelve will be James Reedy, English; James Mauk, mathematics; Kenneth Davis, science; and Sarah Dyke, social studies.

Supervisors are William Tellison, Gene Watson and Glenn Dyke.

The reading materials are programmed and no student will be subjected to a duplication of regular class material in the program.

Army Advances Farrel D. Wilson

CAM RANH BAY, Vietnam -- Farrel D. Wilson, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Morehouse, Mo., has been promoted to army specialist four while serving with the 41st signal battlion in Vietnam.

A cook in the battlion's company C near Cam Ranh Bay, Specialist Wilson entered on active duty in October of 1966 and was stationed at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., prior to his arrival in Vietnam, in March.

His wife, Mildred, lives on route four, Sikeston.

Two Sentenced On Guilty Pleas

NEW MADRID -- Two were sentenced on their guilty pleas in criminal cases in a session Tuesday of the New Madrid County Circuit court and a divorce decree was granted in one suit, according to information in the office of Clerk of the Circuit Court Van H. Sharp Jr.

A personal injury civil suit was on the docket for trial before a jury Thursday and a session of the current September Term of the court will be held Friday, when some guilty pleas in criminal cases will be heard by Judge William L. Ragland.

Judge Ragland took under advisement a case he heard after a jury had been called and then dismissed. It was a personal injury suit of Allen Eugene Vaughn by Jessie Vaughn against James Lavon Blowers.

Junior Jenkins entered a plea of guilty to a state charge of felonious assault and Judge Ragland sentenced him to a term of two years and then placed him on probation without supervision.

A four-year term was given Larry Grandstaff when he entered a guilty plea to a charge of grand larceny. The judge granted him probation under supervision.

In the one divorce suit, a decree was granted to Francis Hollis against Allen J. Hollis and custody of one minor child and $40.00 per month support was awarded plaintiff. The suit was by plaintiff's next friend, Clarence A. Kellog.

Cost of the land and water surface acquired in the Louisiana Purchase was about four cents an acre.

Service Center Board Chosen

MORLEY -- There was a meeting in the neighborhood service center Tuesday night to elect an advisory board for the Head Start program to be started in the center no later than Nov. 15.

The meeting was opened by the coordinator, Mrs. Bill Anderson, who introduced the speaker, Bob Porter, of the Head Start program in Portageville. Mr. Porter explained the Head Start program to the group and said that an advisory board should be elected, to be made up of four parents and four business people.

Those elected to serve were president, Eddie Walton; vice president, Mrs. Ray Emerson; secretary, Mrs. Bob Crotts, and treasurer, Hubert Rowe. The business people were Mrs. Marian Farrenburg, Mrs. Russell Hatfield, Elbert Clark and Eddie Hicks.

An area wide parent representative, Mrs. Charles Freed, who will attend meetings in Portageville, was elected with Mrs. Emerson as alternate.

Mrs. Richard Powell, executive secretary of the Head Start program, was also present for the meeting. Mrs. Powell told the group some of the things the children would be doing in Head Start. She stated that a child learns from playing. She also said there would be a dental and health program.

The children will attend the school for 5 1/2 hours each day.

Diaz Ordaz Plugs Trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz of Mexico, a nation which is a major customer of U.S. goods, spoke out in Congress today for greater trade opportunities for Latin America and other developing areas.

He did not refer directly, in a speech to a joint session of the Senate and House, to a wave of protectionist bills now pending in Congress to restrict imports of a variety of products. But Latin American nations, the Scandinavian countries and the European Common Market nations have registered vigorous opposition to such measures with the State Department.

The Mexican president's appearance at the Capitol constituted his major address in this country where he is on a state visit, with his wife, as guests of President and Mrs. Johnson. Johnson also has spoken out against the protectionist measures.

Memorial Fund For Boone and Hubbard

EAST PRAIRIE -- A memorial fund has been established by the East Prairie Lions club for Dale F. Boone, 49, and Jack Hubbard, 42, who were killed Oct. 13 in an airplane crash in Bollinger county near Leopold.

The club expects to erect a fence around the Lions club park in the city and the two men had been among those members most actively engaged in the program. The club is considering making the entrance a memorial to them.

Moores Donate Site for Use as Boat Access Point

CHARLESTON -- State Rep. David Rolwing announced this week that Handy and Bill Moore, former residents of Charleston now living in Sikeston, have donated an eight-acre site on the Mississippi River for use as an access point and boat-launching area.

The site was presented to the state conservation commission Tuesday in a brief ceremony at the North Main Street home of Joseph H. Moore, for whom the access point will be named.

Rolwing and state conservation commission member Robert DeLaney of Charleston have been working for two years to secure an appropriate location for the facility.

The launching ramp and parking area will be located east of Brewer's Lake between the levee and the river. The site is called Pritchard Landing on some maps, and is about six miles due east of Wyatt Junction, accessible by blacktop and gravel roads.

According to DeLaney, the Mississippi County access point will be the only state-maintained facility on the river with the exception of the S. P. Reynolds access point at Caruthersville.

The commissioner said his department's engineers will begin work on surveys to determine the precise location of the facilities to be contracted at the Moore site. When completed, the access point will be the only all-weather boat-launching ramp area on Mississippi county's 85 miles of river bank.

Kennett Woman Presents Grant to Christian College

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)— A gift to finance construction of a student infirmary building was announced today by Dr. W. Merle Hill, president of Christian College here.

The donor is Mrs. E.L. Spence of Kennett, Mo., who attended the two-year college for women from 1900 to 1904. Several of her relatives have been physicians and 70 of her relatives have attended the college.

The amount of the gift was not announced. Dr. Hill said the facility will be a 25-bed infirmary and will replace a frame house on the campus.

More Than 11,000 Take Mail Courses

COLUMBIA -- What may be called "hidden enrollment" at the University of Missouri is the more than 11,000 correspondence students this year from 40 states and 20 foreign countries.

Among them is a Peace Corps volunteer in Bolivia who already has 130 hours of college credit but is taking a course in American Literature, a lady correspondence student from Kansas City who is confined to a wheelchair and enjoys taking courses for no credit (she doesn't like to take exams), and a boy in Vietnam who recently wrote back for a new set of assignments since he lost his in the mud in a fox hole somewhere.

Blind students, convicts, working wives with husbands in school, men and women who married young and now want to finish high school, children whose parents are employed in foreign countries -- these are some of the students of the correspondence study department of the University of Missouri.

The department, established in 1912, is one of the largest among the public regionally accredited institutions in the United States. It offers 41 high schools courses, 181 college courses and is one of the few giving credits on the graduate level.

Students now can take a course preparing them to take the examination leading to the certificate of high school equivalence. This certificate is not a high school diploma but usually is accepted on an equal basis by most colleges and employers.

The enrollment figure of more than 11,000 indicates that people today are interested in their education. The study program, because of its flexibility, offers a chance for self-advancement to those people who cannot maintain residence on a university campus and attend classes regularly or those who did not finish high school.

A correspondence student can continue his education while working full-time, study at his own pace, and take exams at his convenience. The cost is usually less than class room instruction.

A student, by devoting his full time to study, can finish a two-hour course in several weeks. Usually though, several months are used to complete a course. The maximum time allowed to finish a course is two years.

Anyone can enroll in a course at any time providing he meets the specific prerequisites for the course. Institutions have registered correspondence students as young as 11 years old and up to the age of 85. Whole high school classes enroll sometimes when a teacher is not available locally. Some university students are taking a combination of residence and correspondence courses.

People enroll from all levels of training and maturity who are intersted in self-enrichment, broadening their professional or vocational knowledge, or pursuing a hobby.

In a questionnaire recently sent to correspondence students, the majority said the courses were as good or better than regular residence classes.

The quality of the courses might be attributed to more than 100 regular University faculty members who are instructing the correspondence students.

The correspondence study department which is part of the University Wide Extension Division is able to reach many students through the University extension centers located in each county seat. These centers work closely with the department in providing information and supervising examinations.

Schools Given Federal Aid

NEW MADRID -- Starting Monday, students in New Madrid will be afforded an opportunity to do remedial and extended exercises through a federal program. This program will concentrate reading and arithmetic in elementary.

Pupils in grade One through Three will be housed at New Madrid elementary (Main Street); those in grades Four through Eight will attend classes at New Madrid junior high (Scott Street).

Classes will run one hour each day with alternate weeks in arithmetic and reading. Classes will follow the regular public school calendar.

A tutorial service will be afforded high school students in the areas of social studies, language arts (English), science and mathematics. Sessions will be of 30 minutes duration, affording each student an opportunity to get further help in two (2) subjects each day.

A bus will take the students from the high school into town upon completion of the sessions and will then run from the junior high school to the eastern part of town once the session there has ended.

Teachers assigned to the elementary program, instructing in reading and arithmetic respectively, are as follows: First -- Dorothy G. Gardner and Marian Johnson; Second -- Jayne Selby and Gloria Parrish; Third -- Madge Utterback and Harold Selby; Fourth -- Alzada Johnstone and Robert Raspberry; Fifth -- Brenda Curtis and Dorotha Scobey; Sixth -- Beth Henry and Travis Ellis; Seventh -- Peggy Thompson and Willia Brown; Eigith -- Louis Avery and Robert A. Myers.

Counselors are Louis Hunt and Carlan Femmer.

Remedial instructors for grades nine through twelve will be James Reedy, English; James Mauk, mathematics; Kenneth Davis, science; and Sarah Dyke, social studies.

Supervisors are William Tellison, Gene Watson and Glenn Dyke.

The reading materials are programmed and no student will be subjected to a duplication of regular class material in the program.

Army Advances Farrel D. Wilson

CAM RANH BAY, Vietnam -- Farrel D. Wilson, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Morehouse, Mo., has been promoted to army specialist four while serving with the 41st signal battlion in Vietnam.

A cook in the battlion's company C near Cam Ranh Bay, Specialist Wilson entered on active duty in October of 1966 and was stationed at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., prior to his arrival in Vietnam, in March.

His wife, Mildred, lives on route four, Sikeston.

Two Sentenced On Guilty Pleas

NEW MADRID -- Two were sentenced on their guilty pleas in criminal cases in a session Tuesday of the New Madrid County Circuit court and a divorce decree was granted in one suit, according to information in the office of Clerk of the Circuit Court Van H. Sharp Jr.

A personal injury civil suit was on the docket for trial before a jury Thursday and a session of the current September Term of the court will be held Friday, when some guilty pleas in criminal cases will be heard by Judge William L. Ragland.

Judge Ragland took under advisement a case he heard after a jury had been called and then dismissed. It was a personal injury suit of Allen Eugene Vaughn by Jessie Vaughn against James Lavon Blowers.

Junior Jenkins entered a plea of guilty to a state charge of felonious assault and Judge Ragland sentenced him to a term of two years and then placed him on probation without supervision.

A four-year term was given Larry Grandstaff when he entered a guilty plea to a charge of grand larceny. The judge granted him probation under supervision.

In the one divorce suit, a decree was granted to Francis Hollis against Allen J. Hollis and custody of one minor child and $40.00 per month support was awarded plaintiff. The suit was by plaintiff's next friend, Clarence A. Kellog.

Cost of the land and water surface acquired in the Louisiana Purchase was about four cents an acre.
